WITHHOLDING PLANS UP IN BOTH HOUSES

House and Senate Study New Tax Measures Hitting Wages, Salaries.

TREASURY PLAN SCORED

Senator Asserts Reduction of Income Tax Exemptions Would Fall Short.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Plans to compel every American wage earner to invest a part of his weekly pay check in the war effort were put forth in both branches of congress today.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the senate finance committee advocated a withholding tax of from 5 to 10 per cent on all wages, salaries and dividends, while Rep. Gore (D-Tenn.) came forth with a bill to deduct a percentage of every wage, beginning with 6 per cent in the $20-30, unmarried class, and ranging upward.

The Gore bill, which provides that the money deducted be used to purchase war bonds for the employe, would set up the following scale in the lower brackets:

Weekly Wage	Single	Married
$20 to $30	6%	None
$30 to $40	$1.80 plus 7% of amount over $30	7% of amount over $30
$40 to $50	$2.50 plus 8% of amount over $40	70c plus 8% of amount over $30
$50 to $60	$3.30 plus 9% of amount over $50	$1.50 plus 9% of amount over $50
$60 to $70	$4.20 plus 10% of amount over $60	$2.50 plus 10% of amount over $60

In the higher brackets, annual income would be limited to $25,000, after payment of taxes, with the remainder going into the purchase of bonds. That was the limit favored by President Roosevelt in his recent share-the-war speech.

Senator George's 5-to-10 per cent withholding tax plan was offered as an alternative to the treasury's proposal to obtain $1,100,000,000 in new revenues by lowering income tax exemptions.

Asserting that the treasury plan would place a "terrific burden" on the low income groups, George predicted that congress would be forced to turn instead to some new form of taxation such as a withholding or sales levy. Of the two, he said he preferred a withholding tax.

In a surprise move last week, the treasury proposed to the house ways and means committee that exemptions for single persons be lowered from $750 to $600 and for married persons from $1,500 to $1,200. The $400 credit for each dependent would be reduced to $300.

George said that a 5 per cent withholding tax, collected at the source, would produce about $2,500,000,000. As he explained it, the tax would be deducted by employers and forwarded to the government, the same as the social security tax is now taken out of pay checks.

DESTROY RADIO

Anti-Nazis Dynamite Paris Broadcasting Station.

VICHY, France —(U.P.)— Anti-Nazi terrorists today dynamited and silenced the loudest pro-German radio station in occupied France—Radio Paris.

Dispatches said the Radio Paris was dynamited early this morning and that the pylons were destroyed, bringing down the aerial near Bourges, 130 miles south of Paris.

HE'S OPTIMIST

Auto Ration Chief Would Sell Cars Now For Post-War Delivery.

NEW ORLEANS —(AP)— A plan to sell automobiles now for post-war delivery so that the buyers who pay early would have first priorities on peace time production was advanced here today by Dr. Rolf Nugent of Washington, chief of the automobile rationing branch of the office of price administration.

Under his proposal salesmen would be kept busy taking orders, the finance companies would handle the deals, and advertising agencies would appeal to the public to buy.

U. S. Bombing of Tokyo Came as Jap Radio Told of Calmness of Life, Freedom From Air Attacks There

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—One minute the radio announcer in Tokyo was "detailing the pleasures of life in Japan and the freedom from fear of bombing."

And the next:

"A warning was broadcast in Japanese to the effect that Tokyo was then being bombed by a great number of low-flying airplanes. . ."

And then an hour or so later:

". . . There were between three and four thousand casualties, the Japanese people were asked to pray for rain to extinguish the fires and to decrease the chance for further air raids."

That was what United States army bombers reported hearing in their earphones as they approached and left Japan on the Saturday afternoon of April 18.

"Forty-eight hours later the Tokyo broadcaster reported that the fires started during the raid were then under control."

In its first communique giving "Japan" as the scene of action, the war department yesterday broke a three-week silence on the raids that brought a welter of panicky and contradictory reports from Japan.

The question that has been haunting the Japanese ever since—"where did they come from?"—was left pointedly unanswered.

The communique, reporting that U. S. army bombers had made the first attack in 2,600 years on what the Japanese regard as the sacred soil of their homeland, said:

"The attack was made in clear weather in the middle of the day, the planes flying at low

Here's a concise map of the second front created by the RAF bombing assaults on Germany and its satellite countries. It lists the key Nazi centers attacked, approximate mileage and flying time from secret British air bases. The actual flying time and mileage involved in the numerous and almost continuous raids varies, due to the weight of the loads carried by the big planes, flying conditions and the bombing strategy employed.

2 GET 30 DAYS IN TIRE THEFT

Greenwich, Crestline Men Held After Police Catch Them With Stolen Rubber.

Two residents in the Mansfield area were arrested early yesterday by Mansfield police on tire theft charges after police reported finding them putting on their automobile a tire which they had stolen from a used car lot on Ashland road.

Charles Conklin, Greenwich, and Daryld G. Palmer, Crestline, the men arrested, pleaded guilty when arraigned in municipal court this morning and were sentenced to 30 days each in Richland county jail.

Police said that one of the tires on Conklin's automobile had gone flat and that the two men had removed a tire from an automobile in the Howard Lintz used car lot at 135 Ashland road to replace the flat tire. Police said they came upon them while the men were making the change.

This was the second theft in two days from the Lintz car lot. Lintz reported to police Saturday that thieves had jacked up a car in his lot and had stolen two rear tires. At the same time, the thieves stole two tires from an automobile, owned by Mrs. Sue Cline, 168 Wayne street, which

Two Deputies Cut Short World Trip Planned By Boy, 14

A 14-year-old Marion youth who packed his belongings and started out to see the world on his bicycle ran into two Richland county deputy sheriffs late Saturday night and was back home today.

Although he had only a few cents left in his pockets, the youth was annoyed at having his trip interrupted and went back to Marion reluctantly last night with his parents.

He went to a farm home near Lexington Saturday night and asked to sleep on the front porch. The farm owner called the sheriff's office and Deputies John Whitcomb and J. R. Hetler arrived shortly to bring the boy, his bicycle, and two suitcases to Mansfield for the night.

The youth was housed at the Salvation Army headquarters until his parents came after him.

City's Wholesalers Place Ceilings On Prices Today

Mansfield felt the first impact of the government's price control program today as the city's wholesalers reduced the prices of scores of household articles and grocery items to the March, 1942, level.

The consumer won't notice the price reduction until next Monday when the retailers must bring their prices down to the same level in the move to avoid inflation and make more money available for buying war bonds and stamps.

Meanwhile, Richland county's civilian defense organization, headed by County Commissioner Ray Hout, was called on today to join other similar organizations in the state in educating the public to co-operate with the war price program.

An institute to train speakers to participate in the educational problem will be held in Mansfield within the next two weeks, the state civilian defense office announced. The institute leader

FORD COUNTERS

Asks Union to Freeze Pay of Workers for Duration.

DETROIT —(INS)— Contending that pay raises will "merely increase cost of our war effort," the Ford Motor company today countered UAW-CIO wage boost requests with a demand for freezing of all salaries paid its workers for the duration of the war.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, in announcing the wage-freezing demand, expressed the company's reaction to a union notice that it will seek a $1-a-day general pay rise when negotiations open on the Ford contract which expires June 30.

Immediately after Bennett's statement, the National Ford Council of the UAW-CIO passed a resolution assailing "profiteers to seek to peg the incomes of individual workers at present substandard levels."

City's Fire Equipment Gets 'Poor', 'Undermanned' Rating

"A seriously under-manned fire department with old equipment in only fair to poor condition."

This is the description the National Board of Fire Underwriters makes of Mansfield's fire department in its report of a survey of the city's fire-fighting facilities. The report was released today.

The underwriters made their study of Mansfield's department and the city's fire control machinery last December after Mansfield voters had approved a five-year, half-mill tax levy to purchase three new engines, a new ladder truck, new hose, remodel two old stations and build a new one in the western end of the city.

The survey was made on the request of Mayor W. J. Locke as a means of helping guide the city in planning a better fire-fighting program.

Although the underwriters' report was completed on April 27, it has just been presented to city officials.

Recommendations made in the report include the immediate addition of sufficient men so that there will be at least four men on duty with all fire companies at all times, the construction of a new station in the vicinity of

CPT FLIERS AT AIRPORT GIVEN REVISED STATUS

46 Civilian Pilots Training Here Receive Military Reserve Rating.

The 46 fliers receiving instruction at Mansfield Municipal airport under the Civilian Pilot Training program graduated from civilian to reserve military status today under new orders received from the Civil Aeronautics Authority, which has been supervising the CPT function.

The new rules were outlined to the fliers receiving training by J. R. Harrington, airport manager, at a meeting in John Simpson junior high school last night.

Major point of the new regulations is that all members of the CPT classes are expected to enlist as aviation cadets in the Army Air Corps Reserve or Naval Reserve. On completing their instructor's courses, they will assume active duty immediately as Army or Navy flying instructors.

Those who pass the elementary phase of the CPT training course will enter active service, but not as instructors. They will be assigned to their posts on reporting for duty.

New procedures in training also are being instituted, and the regulations require "tightening-up" of discipline. Harrington told the group. Henceforth, the students will be "Mister," not Joe or Jack, and instructors will be "Sir." The students must stand inspection every morning, and must be in full uniform at all times.

A top sergeant and sergeant will be selected from the class members for each group taking the courses.

The number of students was swelled to 46 last week with the arrival of a class of six fliers who will receive the 18-week's instructor's training. They are John Axmann, Dayton; Jack Bowers, Lexington; Robert Caine, Yellow Springs; Robert Dawson, Plymouth; Harold Matteson, Mansfield; and James Whitmore, Toledo.

Beer Says Bittinger Attempts to Perpetuate Himself as Party's Leader.

Charles M. Beer, Ashland county Democratic leader and former state fair manager and 17th district central committeeman, charged today that J. Freer Bittinger of Ashland was attempting to perpetuate himself as state Democratic chairman.

Beer's charge grew out of a meeting of district Democratic leaders in Mansfield 10 days ago when Ashland county was voted the 17th district Democratic committee candidacy this year.

Beer accused Bittinger, who is expected to be the committee candidate in August, violated the party's rotary system which gives each of the counties in the district a chance to elect a committeeman. He said district party leaders had anticipated that the successor to E. B. Kallmerton, Mansfield, would be from Coshocton county.

At the Mansfield meeting, however, Bittinger won the candidacy for Ashland county, making him

8 Injured In Car Mishaps; 13 Killed In State Crashes

Eight persons were injured in nine automobile accidents in the Mansfield area over a week-end which saw 13 die on Ohio highways. Nine of the 13 persons killed were less than 24 years old.

William Eilenfield, 68, of 307 East Fourth street, suffered cuts and bruises when struck by an automobile driven by V. A. McClellan, 43, of 464 West Sixth street. The accident occurred at East Fifth and Adams street late Saturday.

R. M. Arnold and Emer Roberts, both of Mansfield R. D. 4, received cuts and bruises when their motorcycle collided with a truck late Saturday at the intersection of Florence and Lexington avenue.

Two residents of near Loudonville were injured Saturday night when the motorcycle on which they were riding turned over on State Route 39, four miles north of Perrysville.

LONDON—(INS)—No official explanations were forthcoming today for the cutting off of telephone communication between Berlin and Sweden Saturday night. Swedish circles in London interpreted the communications interruption as a German precaution to screen large-scale troop movements inside Germany.

During the communications blackout large-scale military maneuvers were reported under way in Sweden.

A Berlin radio report said the maneuvers include a mock air attack on the center of Stockholm in which paratroops were dropped in the city.

2 Jap Submarines Sunk By United Nation Planes In Coral Sea.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia—in a sequel to the great battle of the Coral sea, Allied bombers dealt another blow to Japanese naval power yesterday by sinking or damaging two enemy submarines off northeastern Australia, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The number of Japanese vessels officially reported knocked out of action or badly crippled in this theater in the past seven days thus raised to a grand total of 21.

Competent observers said there were good grounds to believe that the Allied announcements of Japanese losses so far had been conservative and there has been little mention of transports.

Correspondents were informed today, however, that the enemy force included transports and that when the full list of sinkings is announced it might include Japanese transport losses. Thus far communiques have listed only two "transports or supply ships" sunk and two damaged.

Today's communique made the first mention of Japanese submarines.

Although the Allied naval forces—predominantly United States—were disengaged, air forces were on constant patrol for enemy naval units that might have become scattered and eluded the Allied ships.

Whether the submarines were a part of the enemy fleet repulsed by Allied forces last week in the Coral sea was not clear, but it was evident that the Allied air force was continuously patrolling those waters for remnants of the Japanese armada.

First indication of this was given yesterday in a communique announcing that Allied planes had

CHUNGKING —(U.P.)— Japanese reinforcements rushed northward over the Burma road were halted in fierce fighting today before they were able to reach the trapped remnants of Japan's invaders along the frontier of China's Yunnan province, a Chinese communique reported.

(By United Press)

CHUNGKING — Chinese troops and American fliers slammed the back door to China today, turning the Burma road into a death trap for the remnants of a fleeting Japanese invasion force that only last week swaggered boldly across the Chinese frontier.

From ancient Mandalay to mountainous Chefang, counter-attacking forces of American Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell pressed a ruthless campaign of annihilation, completely isolating one enemy column and tightening a vice on the survivors of another.

The brilliant Allied coup already had cost the Japanese at least 4,500 men whose bodies littered the retreat from Chefang, 24 miles inside China's Yunnan province from Burma.

Here the Chinese and Americans collaborated in a lightning blow against an enemy mechanized force heading toward Kunming while a Chinese army in Burma recaptured Maymyo, closed in on Mandalay and sent a spearhead north along the Burma Road.

The immediate Chinese objectives now are Wanting, frontier town at the gateway to Yunnan, and Lashio, the Burma Road's southern terminus, Chinese military authorities revealed. They said the sudden collapse of the invading Japanese mechanized column had returned to Chinese control the southwestern Yunnan

HORROR: Churchill Warns Nazis On Use Of War Gas

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Churchill's brightest war report so far was overshadowed today by the terrible prospect of gas warfare which he promised to Germany if the Nazis dared to start it.

The British attitude was one of abhorrence for the use of gas. But the island was confident that Germany would invite disaster for her cities and people by starting it—and had better think twice if, as the Russians already have reported, she is testing it on the Crimean front.

British newspapers, recalling that Churchill accurately had foreseen "events at hand" in the past, took for granted that he spoke of an imminent possibility. They renewed warnings to civilians to carry gas masks and their military writers dwelt on Britain's capacity to wage such warfare.

Speaking two years after the Germans had stormed across France to Dunkerque, 20 miles from England's shore, Churchill yesterday gave Britain and her Allies what he called a well earned "message of good cheer." It was his second anniversary as prime minister.

He declared the "awful balances" finally had turned and how "we have only to endure and persevere to conquer."

Contrasted even with hi last message, when he informed the British empire that Singapore had fallen, Churchill yesterday gave it heartening news from all continents — of an impending mighty American-British bombing offensive against Germany, of the stalwart defense and growing strength of "our Rus-

DISARMING: That's Hinted U. S. Demand On Martinique

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—French Ambassador Gaston Henri-Haye was granted an interview with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, presumably on the Martinique problem. The interview was scheduled for shortly before noon.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The United States today is believed to be seeking the complete dismantling of the French warships and planes in Martinique and other French Caribbean possessions.

This is thought to be the main object of the understanding being sought with Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner of Martinique, by Admiral John H. Hoover, commander of the American naval forces in the Caribbean.

Admiral Hoover arrived in Martinique on Saturday, accompanied by Samuel Reber, assistant chief of the state department's European division.

If Admiral Robert accepts the proposed American agreement, the United States will not occupy the French Caribbean possessions, or take any drastic action against them.

Furthermore, the United States government is prepared to recognize Admiral Robert as the ultimate authority in those French territories. This government also is prepared to help maintain the economic life of the French territory and assure that the assets of the Vichy government in them.

WARNS NAZIS ON USE OF GAS AGAINST REDS

Churchill Asserts British Are Prepared to Loose Same Weapon.

sian ally," of the occupation of Madagascar, of British and American seapower in the Pacific which he said would "grip and hold the Japanese."

Many of his passages rang with assurance and determination, touching on events still to come and on accomplishments already on the credit side of the Allies' ledger.

Among the most significant were these:

Ultimate Victory.

"We are moving through many reverses and defeats to a complete and final victory.

"We have only to endure and persevere to conquer. . . .

"Now we are not alone. We have mighty allies . . . there can be but one end."

Gas.

"I wish to make it plain that we shall treat the unprovoked use of poison gas against our Russian ally exactly as if it were used against ourselves and if we are satisfied that this new outrage has been committed by Hitler we will use our great and growing air superiority in the west to carry gas warfare on the largest possible scale far and wide against military objectives in Germany."

Hitler's Great Mistake.

"In June last, without provocation and in breach of a pact of non-aggression, he invaded the lands of the Russian peoples . . . he had the strongest army in the world, trained in war, flushed with incredible, unbroken successes, and equipped with limitless munitions. . . .

"The Russians . . . sustained losses which no other country or government has ever borne in so short a time and lived. . . .

"Then Hitler made his second grand blunder. He forgot about the winter. . . ."

Air Attacks.

"We are on his tracks. . . . The British and presently the American bombing offensive against Germany will be one of the principal features in this year's world war.

". . . Now, while the German armies will be bleeding and burning up their strength against a 2,000-mile Russian front, . . . is the time to bring home to the German people the wickedness of their rulers by destroying under their very eyes the factories and seaports on which their war effort depends."

Second Front.

"We are urged from many quarters to invade the continent of Europe and so form a second front. Naturally, I shall not disclose what our intentions are. But there is one thing I will say. I welcome the militant, aggressive spirit of the British nation, so strongly shared across the Atlantic. . . ."

The Pacific.

"The Japanese . . . will find resistance stiffening on all their widely spread fronts. They can ill afford such losses as they have suffered in the naval action of the Coral sea. . . .

"At the start, the pent-up, saved-up resources of Japan were bound to prevail . . . but the strength of the United States . . . is many times greater than that of Japan, and we also will make our contribution to the final defeat and punishment of this ambitious and greedy nation. . . .

"I am not prone to make predictions but I have no doubt that British and American seapower will grip and hold the Japanese and that overwhelming airpower . . . will lay them low."

Claim Nazis Ready To Loose New Gas

LONDON—(U.P.)—Germany may loose on the world at any time a nerve gas calculated to produce mental paralysis which robs its victims of all power of decision for hours, well informed foreign quarters asserted today.

Desperate over its failure to defeat Russia, Germany now is concentrating this gas in quantities and is issuing new type gas masks, designed to neutralize it, to its armies, informants said.

Information from two distinct sources reached London that Adolf Hitler has selected the nerve gas as his new weapon with which to try to retrieve his position in Russia.

It was reported that last week Germany had great quantities of a mysterious liquid, believed to be the new gas, concentrated at Singen, just across the Swiss frontier in Germany.

Nazis Silent On Churchill Charge

LONDON—(INS)—Neither the German radio nor the German news agency, DNB, made any mention up to noon (German time) today of Prime Minister Churchill's warning that Britain would employ poison gas if the Nazis introduced gas warfare.

Consequently the majority of the German people were not aware of the situation.

At 2 p. m. today the German radio commented on Churchill's speech, but made no mention of poison gas.

Rome Distorts Churchill's Talk

LONDON —(INS)— The Rome radio today commented on Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech yesterday but deliberately distorted the parts dealing with the use of poison gas.

According to the Rome radio version, Churchill threatened without provocation to use poison gas against the civilian population of Germany.

eligible for the candidacy and to the state chairmanship. Beer said Bittinger contended at the meeting here that Ashland county's last committeeman had served only one term which entitled him (Bittinger) to serve the second term which the former committeeman declined.

"Bittinger had the whole matter cut and dried and he was selected as the next state central committeeman from the 17th district to succeed Kallmerten," Beer said in his prepared statement.

John C. O'Donnell, Richland county Democratic executive chairman, said he understood "it was either Coshocton or Knox county's turn to elect a state committeeman this time, but Ashland county got the most votes at the meeting here."

He added that the district leaders were voting on the counties' right to select a candidate and not on the candidate himself. The committeeman will be elected at the August primary.

Beer declared that Bittinger by the move hoped to become chairman of the party's state central committee so he could abolish the state executive committee and remain as party chairman.

Bittinger, disavowing such motives, said "such a thing would be illegal." He added that he had talked to county chairmen about his candidacy and denied he was attempting to disrupt party unity.

"Rather than attempting to create disunity, I am doing just the opposite," Bittinger said.

Counties in the Seventeenth district besides Ashland, Richland and Coshocton are Knox, Licking and Delaware.

City's Fire Equipment Gets 'Poor', 'Undermanned' Rating

Marion and Sherman avenues, the appointment of an assistant chief, the construction of a suitable drill tower to train members, and the adoption of a building code as soon as possible.

The report also recommends that new pumpers, equipped with 750-gallon pumps, large water tanks and adequate hose and ladders be purchased to replace old hose wagons at Stations 3 and 4 and an old pumper at Station 2.

In order to provide a larger water supply for operation of fire equipment, the underwriters recommended that an additional 1,500,000 gallon well be provided and a 4,000,000 gallon service pump be installed at the Maxwell Springs pumping station.

In line with the same recommendation, the survey, according to the report, shows the need for strengthening of the water distribution system by constructing additional eight-inch water mains.

At present, the fire department has 34 members, including the Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger, eight captains, 24 privates and an electrician. The department personnel is divided into two platoons, alternating on duty in 24-hour shifts.

Because of the allowance of one day off each week, there are only 13 available for service each day. Seven of these men are stationed at headquarters in the municipal building, and two each at Stations 2, 3 and 4.

In reporting on the condition of the equipment, the underwriters have this to say:

"Much of the equipment is old and in fair to poor condition; reserve equipment is not provided; ladder service is inadequate and pumping capacity far below requirements. Hose supply is limited to almost that carried on apparatus. The department has practically no drills or training program."

The underwriters claim that "new men receive little special training and are assigned soon after appointment to a company where additional training depends upon actual fire duty encountered," and urge that a drill tower and a supervised training program be established.

City's Wholesalers Place Ceilings On Prices Today

here will be Paul M. Titus of Kenyon college, Gambier, O.

A number of speakers will be assigned to appear before organizations and at meetings in the city and county to explain the objectives of the war price movement and to urge the public to use the money saved by the lower prices to purchase war stamps and bonds.

The wholesale price reduction which went into effect at 12:01 a. m. today dropped grocery and household articles as much as 15 per cent in some cases, one wholesalers said. The reductions ranged from five to 15 per cent.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson called upon every manufacturer and wholesaler to "pitch in and make this vital war measure work."

"There are lots of problems to be solved, lots of kinks to straighten out," he said. "But the biggest job now is to start selling at the maximum prices laid down in the regulation. Don't stop everything and call for help just because a problem has arisen at one point. Set it aside and go ahead with the rest of the job."

As wholesale price control became an actuality, 1,900,000 retailers looked ahead to next Monday when the prices which they charge the public for virtually everything Americans eat, use or wear also will come under ceilings. Against the highest March levels will be the maximum.

The nation's traditionally "free" economy was fast disappearing under the hammer-like blows of price control, rationing, higher taxes and conversion of industry to the manufacture of planes, tanks, guns and other implements of war. By July 1, federal rent regulations will be a reality for 323 areas housing 86,000,000 persons, along with control over the prices of commodity services sold at retail.

Motorists in the 17 Atlantic seaboard states and the District of Columbia faced another war-time curb on their way of life, however, the rationing of gasoline—scheduled for next Friday. At the same time deliveries to eastern filling stations will be cut 50 per cent.

Calling a halt to pleasure driving and week-end trips, Henderson announced that nearly 3,000,000 "non-essential" motorists will be allotted only 21 gallons of gasoline per car between May 15 and July 1, when a more comprehensive rationing plan will go into effect.

He expressed hope that additional gifts the rest of this week would put the drive across. Several sections of the county are still to be heard from, he pointed out.

damaged another Japanese seaplane tender and a tanker in the Coral sea.

The communique declared, however, that there had been no further contact between Japanese and Allied naval units Saturday and no further mention of naval action was made by MacArthur's headquarters today in reporting on Sunday's developments.

Official quarters declined to elaborate on the situation, and it still was uncertain whether the Coral sea action definitely had been broken off or whether the opposing fleets were maneuvering to resume the battle which a Saturday communique said had "ceased temporarily."

Although General MacArthur's headquarters has branded as "fantastic" Japanese claims regarding Allied losses in the battle, their actual extent still was undisclosed and it was generally expected here that any announcement would come only from Washington—when the navy department believes the information will no longer benefit the Japanese.

In addition to blasting the two Japanese submarines yesterday, Allied bombers were reported to have attacked enemy seaplanes in the Louisiade islands off the southeastern tip of New Guinea.

"Bombs were dropped in the target area," the communique said but gave no further details.

Japs Admit They Met Superior Force

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts) —(AP)— Allied naval forces which participated in the Coral sea battle were of exceptional strength and constituted by far the most powerful fleet units the Japanese navy has yet encountered, the Berlin radio quoted the Japanese press as saying today.

U. S. Makes Photo Record of Battle

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — American bombers returning to their Australian base from an independent mission watched the gigantic battle of the Coral sea from grandstand positions at 18,000 feet and crewmen made a vivid photographic record of the conflict.

The Melbourne raido, quoting Norman Stockton, a war correspondent who had seen the pictures, said the action took place 150 miles from the North Queensland coast.

"At least 500 planes took part," said the broadcast, heard here by CBS. "Both sides used torpedo carriers and dive bombers."

The sky was cloudless and the photographs captured the engagement in startling detail.

"One astounding photograph shows six Japanese warships, including the two doomed aircraft carriers, weaving a pattern of white circles against the background of deep blue sea, each Japanese ship dodging American bombs in different directions, each frantically attempting to escape destruction," Stockton was quoted.

"Another shows the aircraft carrier a few minutes before she was struck. The bombs are plainly etched against the background of blue and maneuvering white vessels.

"In an earlier picture, the doomed aircraft carrier is seen making a complete circle in an effort to avoid the bombs. The speed at which the Japanese ships were traveling in their effort to avoid the Allied planes is shown by the huge white wakes of foam, almost as large as the ships themselves."

Stockton described the pictures of the battle as "probably the most astounding photographic scoop on record."

VOLCANO ERUPTS

Asama-Yama Spews Molten Lava On Countryside Near Tokyo.

LONDON —(AP)— Asama-Yama, the largest active volcano in Japan, about 100 miles northwest of Tokyo, erupted with great violence Saturday night, doing unestimated damage, according to the Berlin radio.

The broadcast, quoting dispatches from Japan, said the eruption was the worst in many years and the German-controlled Brussels radio characterized it as "a catastrophe." A thick rain of ashes blanketed the countryside for miles around, the Brussels version added.

was parked in a garage near the used car lot.

Another automobile tire theft was reported this morning. Mrs. Jobe Norris, Ninth avenue, told Sheriff Frank E. Robinson that a spare tire and wheel had been stolen from the rear compartment of the Norris car during the night. The tire was stolen from the auto while it as parked near the Norris home.

Mansfield police had another theft to investigate today. E. D. Dennis, manager of the Ritz theater, reported that thieves had looted two candy vending machines in the theater. Police said that the theft was probably committed by some one who hid in the theater until it was closed late Saturday.

L. C. Marshall, 124 Newlon place, manager of the Kroger grocery store at 248 North Mulberry street, told police that a large window at the front of the store had been broken but that nothing had been stolen.

George S. Baer, Ashland, proprietor of the Century Printing company at 44 West Sixth street, also reported that a window had been broken at his print shop but that nothing was missing.

towns of Lungling and Chefang and the mountain range on the west bank of the Salween river.

This statement predicted the annihilation of at least 5,000 Japanese, indicating that more than 1,000 were fleeing in disorder into another Chinese trap somewhere along the Burma Road between Lashio and the frontier. Chinese artillery and American pilots trapped and wiped out more than 3,000 enemy troops Saturday and at least 500 more were known to have been killed since then. In a previous engagement, the Chinese reported 1,000 enemy casualties.

The second Japanese column facing annihilation is in the Bhamo area northwest of Lashio. Its communication lines had been severed and the Chinese said its fate was "sealed."

Maymyo, 30 miles northeast of Mandalay, definitely was back in Chinese hands and Chinese troops were fighting in Mandalay's outskirts, attacking from the east and west. Officially, the situation at Lashio was obscure, but Chinese quarters predicted the enemy also would be ousted from that railhead city on the Burma Road, 116 miles below the Chinese border.

Deny British Cut Off In Burma

LONDON — (AP) — A British source declared today there was no confirmation of Tokyo reports that the British have been cut off in northern Burma and declared that, so far as is known, General Harold Alexander's army still was retreating up the valley of the Chindwin river.

8 Injured In Car Mishaps; 13 Killed In State Crashes

R. D. 2, received a fractured right ankle and cuts on the head; and Annabel Stoner, 28, suffered lacerations of the face and left knee. They were taken to Mansfield General hospital.

James Lolar, 28, of Cincinnati received cuts and bruises on the right shoulder and knee Sunday afternoon when the automobile he was driving ran off the highway and turned over five and a half miles north of Mansfield on U. S. Route 42. He told patrolmen that he apparently went to sleep while driving.

Nathan Miller, jr., 22, and John McGuire, 20, both of Cleveland, suffered cuts and bruises Sunday morning when the car Miller was driving failed to negotiate a curve on U. S. Route 42, at the top of Ashland hill. The car skidded and turned over.

Miss Ida Young, 38, colored, Ashland, received side and back injuries yesterday when the car in which she was riding collided with another at Savannah.

John H. Beane, 54, colored, Elyria, escaped injuries late Saturday when his car skidded and turned over at Savannah after a right front tire blew out.

Three Cleveland residents were killed on U. S. Route 42 near Lodi in a head-on, two-car collision. They were Miss Coletta O'Boyle, 20; Miss Betty Sillasen, 19, and Charles Breen, 20.

Others killed in week-end auto accidents included:

Jack Nank, 17, when his auto hit a utility pole in Cleveland.

Fred Nelson, 37, Bay City, Mich., when his car hit a pole near Sandusky.

Myril Inglish, 61, of Freeport, when her car left the road near Cambridge and hit an embankment.

Irvin Wischmeyer, 19, and Richard Funke, 17, both of Cincinnati, when their auto hit a street car.

Vance G. Rinehart, 22, Dover, when his motorcycle collided with an automobile near Dover.

Lauren L. Colvin, 28, Montpelier, when his car overturned near Bryan.

Howard Reiser, 21, Columbus, when his truck hit a garage near Wierton.

Jerome A. Burg, 23, Springfield, when a train struck his car.

Millard Parsley, 21, McDermott, when his automobile struck a building near Portsmouth.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

You ought to meet my friend, Will Dudley. I suppose Will must be seventy-eight or nine . . . but you'd never know it. He's tall and lean and hard as a hickory. And although the only formal education he ever had was a few winters in the old red schoolhouse, I think that he's the wisest man I know in many ways.

For one thing, Will taught me the value of what he calls "Just a-settin'!"

Come upon Will in the evening, when his hard day's work is done, and you'll find him "just a-settin'," in a rocker on his porch. In one hand he'll have his old briar pipe and in the other, a tall cool glass of beer.

"Wholesome, appetizin' beer," says Will, "is standard equipment for proper settin'! Puts a feller in an easy-goin' peaceful mood."

You see, Will holds the theory that in our present mixed-up world, a man needs a quiet hour every day. An hour in which to sit down quietly and restore his strength and courage.

Will thinks, and I agree with him, that a man ought to forget all his own and the world's worries during that hour-of-peace. And Will feels that a glass of fragrant mellow beer helps most to bring you quiet relaxation.

Show me the man who sits down quietly of an evening with his glass of beer and I'll show you a man who is wise in the ways of living. Such men, like Will Dudley, live to a ripe old age, unembittered by the troubles of the world. They seem to remain, all their lives, sweet-natured and kindly.

Time has a way of rendering accurate judgments on the value of the things men use and enjoy in the world. And Time . . . thousands of years of it . . . has handed down the verdict that beer is a pleasant and worthy companion for all men of good will.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MAY 11, 1942.

When in doubt, buy war bonds. Also when not in doubt.

The worm turns joyfully, as the kids show Father and Mother how to ride a bike.

Americans who thought Australia was unduly excited have found there was something in that scare, and by the same token our West coast does well to be on guard.

Good Riddance

BON VOYAGE to nearly 1,000 guests who have been enjoying the hospitality of this country, generally against their will and ours too, for many months. And few "au revoirs." In most cases Americans hope never to see them again. They are mainly diplomats and other foreign officials who have represented their countries in the United States and Latin-America, and with whose governments this country is now at war, actually or technically.

Among them are the insolent gents from Japan who were smiling and bowing in the State Department at Washington at the very moment when their government was bombing Pearl Harbor and raining death on 3,000 Americans.

Uncle Sam has been maintaining most of them in luxurious hotels at Asheville, N. C., and White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., at government expense, until they could be exchanged for Americans stranded abroad. Here is a situation where Americans get a break. We benefit both ways from the swap. And it is natural to feel a sense of cleansing as those alien enemies leave our shores.

They will not sail in the dark, subject to attack by lurking submarines, as so many of our own people have had to do. Forty floodlights will illumine their ship by night. And it would be wicked to wish them bad luck on the way over.

Sportsmanship

SUPPOSE you don't get as much sugar in your coffee as you would like; what of it? Everything considered, you're probably lucky to have any sugar at all, or any coffee. Of any tea. Or chocolate. Taking the world as a whole, today far more people lack such things than have them.

Suppose your transportation is interfered with. Suppose you have to do more walking than you're accustomed to. Suppose you or your son or your father must go into the army. Suppose your familiar world seems in process of being turned upside down.

All this is troublesome and some of it is very hard to bear, for a nation accustomed to ease, luxury and security. But in moments of mental clarity, when resentment vanishes and sportsmanship appears, the natural American spirit rises up and says: "Who are we, to expect freedom from the travails of the rest of mankind?"

Normal Americans may go even farther, and admit that perhaps in the past they have had more than their share of the good life which all people seek. And they may conclude, in the scriptural words that "to whom much hath been given, of him shall much be required." This is not piety but sportsmanship.

Doughnuts for Soldiers

DO DOUGHBOYS still eat doughnuts? They do. Major Alva M. Holbrook, of the Salvation Army, says he told American troops at Hawaii:

"You get just as hungry and you can stuff away just as many doughnuts as your pappies. And when you are not in training or fighting, you do the same things."

Life and war and the army change, yet many things remain the same. More and better doughnuts will be made in this war for more and better doughboys. Can these boys fight as well as their dads, besides eating as well? Bataan and Corregidor say they can. Wake Island says they can. The Battle of the Coral Sea takes up the refrain.

Their forebears ate doughnuts, and fought, and won freedom for their own land, for Cuba, for the slaves. Often and always they have fought for the freedom of the seas. This time they fight for the freedom of all nations from aggression, from conquest and from slavery.

There's just something about doughnuts. Doughnuts and doughboys together are getting ready to win again.

Grown-Ups Should Pay

SCHOOL CHILDREN paid for the last war. This warning by Mrs. Myrtle Dahl, president of the National Education association, was uttered at the San Antonio convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. Dahl means that wars cost money, that war debts can be paid only by economizing elsewhere, and that outbursts of public economy are pretty sure to hit the schools first. Teachers' salaries are cut, subjects are dropped, and old buildings are tolerated long after they should have been torn down.

This form of economy is shortsighted and foolish. Ignorance is no cure for anything, not even debt. After the war, the burdens it has left should be shouldered by adults instead of being worked off on the children.

Martial New Zealand

IF YOU want to see real war effort, look at New Zealand. With a population of only 1,600,000, she has 310,000 men in uniform, to say nothing of women in various defense activities. That is as if this country had 25,000,000 men in the army, navy, air force and home guard. Taxation, too, in New Zealand is up where it hurts, in many cases amounting to 87½ per cent. Evidently we have scarcely begun to feel this war.

Still, if it becomes necessary, we can do as well, or better.

International Trustees

MADAGASCAR, it has been announced in Washington and London, while being used for defensive purposes by the United Nations during the war, will be "held in trust for France" and restored to that country. There need be no doubt of the pledge being kept.

The precedent thereby established is one of large and growing interest. As the war proceeds, and the free powers continue taking over enemy and neutral territory, as they doubtless will, Uncle Sam and John Bull may find themselves getting into the real estate trust business on a large scale. In fact, this is already true of Britain. When the show-down finally comes at the peace table, these two governments may be trustees for a quarter of the world. It would be one of the most remarkable situations in history.

YOU JUST LET US WORRY ABOUT THAT, MR. HITLER

New Fields for Women?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

NOW'S the time to break into one of the so-called "learned professions."

They've been notoriously overcrowded for scores of years. Schools of medicine, law and theology have turned out graduates faster than the supply of 'em could be absorbed.

Young doctors have hung out their shingles, to find mighty few patients available. Older practitioners have been available in more than sufficient numbers to prescribe for already existing invalids and new folk haven't fallen ill fast enough to pay the rising generation of medicos' office rent and keep 'em in automobiles.

Litigation hasn't developed adequately to furnish briefs for youthful barristers and solicitors. Malefaction's been too backward to keep 'em busy with criminal cases.

Worshipers seemingly have been shy even on remorse. Cracking into a pulpit has been slow work.

A junior doctor heretofore, frequently has had to string along indefinitely as a mere interne before starting to doctor independently. A junior lawyer's had to be satisfied, up into middle life, with a minor clerical job with some big, established firm, before appearing in court in his individual capacity.

A junior clergyman has remained as a curate, or what corresponds to it, in his particular denomination, before getting a church of his own.

There's been a plethora of 'em; that's the nub of it.

But a plethora has to have an original aggregation to extract it from and, shortly, there's going to be no such original aggregation from which to extract.

Why not?

Why, because all eligible kids are being drawn off into the military service. When they come out, if the war spins out a bit, it'll be too late for 'em to start, at that late date, and they'll go into something else.

True, quite a few of 'em are in it now, but Uncle Sam wants 'em as fast as they're turned loose—all of 'em on general principles; young doctors for the medical corps, young clergymen for chaplainships, young lawyers for the judge advocate general's office or some similar vacancy. They're specialists, and they're needed, one way or another.

The drafting of 'em's beginning to create a vacuum.

The chaps who ooze back into it, at the war's end, will refill it considerably, but the guys who've made good meanwhile will be fixed to stick considerably, it's guessed especially if the row's long enough drawn out to have semi-institutionalized today's incumbents.

This isn't my lone hypothesis.

It's the testimony of the American Council of Education, which has quizzed more than 1,000 institutions on the subject.

* * *

According to the ACE'S dope, our post-war practitioners (I'm speaking mostly of doctors and lawyers) will be principally women. Our lads will have been largely swiped off and the gals will do the bulk of our doctoring and litigating for us from then on—for a long while, and maybe on into perpetuity.

ACE'S investigators don't refer alone to comparatively well-known professions, like medicine, law and theology.

Its quiz, under direction of Dr. C. S. Marsh, poked also into miscellaneous chemistry, astronomy (including (weather), neurology, pschiatry and radiology.

Women are at 'em.

Dr. Marsh, in his report, says that many of the occupations still show, each, "a determined preference for one of the other of the sexes"—implying that they're pro-masculine.

Well, the game is young.

The old-fashioned agencies and institutions may yet see "where they get off at," so to speak, in slang.

The gals may be all our doctors and lawyers and pulpiteers, from pretty soon and then on. I don't know about scientific research. Dr. Marsh thinks they make take charge of that, too, with masculinity simply under orders from the madame.

It'll be a relief from responsibility, anyway.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 11—Commander-in-chief of the Union Armies, Ulysses S. Grant, wrote his famous message, "I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," on this day, May 11, 1864, during a lull in the deadlocked battle of Spottsylvania. It took two months of hard fighting and cost 72,000 soldiers but unquestionably Grant's determination landed his men at the gates of Richmond and was a deciding factor in the winning of the war.

Listen World!

Don't Be Surprised

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE wants me to write an article in praise of women—an eulogy, particularly, of these "amazing modern women who are swinging into line behind the defense movement."

And I agree with her; it's a great pageant. Slender, lovely young things in defacing goggles. . . . Size 40 mothers standing behind drills and lathes . . . ballroom beauties striding about in cumbersome coveralls, swarming as expertly as any man over half-finished planes. Women at war. . . . Yes, they are a great and inspiring sight. But I am not going to write any eulogy about them. For they are neither new nor novel. They have existed since the world began and every progressive step in civilization is due to the fact that, beneath their seeming weakness and frivolity, women are tough babies. And can take whatever is dished out.

Out of the long years comes a picture. I was a child of seven watching a woman trying to make a garden in the stubborn, unbroken soil of a frontier town. She was a small, slight woman, delicately made. She had been gently bred in an old English village, framed by its lovely gardens, primrose-starred lawns, hawthorne hedges in ancient earth long since disciplined to man's desires.

Now she was facing soil which had known only the moccasined feet of the Indians . . . the spurred heels of adventurers. All the gentleness and quiet comfort of her old life lay behind her. For she had chosen to follow the trail of adventure, to choose love and poverty in a strange, wild land, as against the security of her girlhood.

There she stood, wrestling with a rusty spade, pitting her frail young strength against its savage resistance. Her clothes were gray tatters. Her lovely skin was scarred by the ruthless wind and storm of an alien land. But even to my ignorant, childish eyes there was a glory about her, though I could not comprehend its nature. She had lost her Old World garden but she was determined to make one in this crude, unfriendly frontier soil. Without money, without service, she was still determined to preserve the standards and traditions she had known. And so she bent above the soil. And the soil, incredibly, gave way. And, as it gave, a smile broke through the grim determination of her face.

That woman was my mother. Set down in a land still bleeding from Spanish struggles and Indian wars, she was determined that her children should know beauty and pride and high ambition.

A little woman with indomitable blue eyes and, for all her beauty, the determined jaw of a fighter. Without money, without help, or the crudest modern conveniences, she raised her children in a great, ramshackle house, nagged and dimpled her husband into new effort, saw that our shabby shelves were filled with Shakespeare, Chaucer, Shelley and Bryon. A brave, blazing torch of a woman, grimly triumphant, so I saw her first in my jumbled, childish vision. And so, when she died at 87, I still saw her. During those years she had known every hardship, sacrifice and tragedy which could come a woman's way. But nothing had broken her, nothing could break her.

I am not going to pay tribute to our new women warriors. Ever since life began women have been warriors. The Wild West was not tamed by eager gentlemen; it was civilized by henpecked guys who'd "do anything rather than face the missus." And believe me, lads, the gals have lost nothing of their original potency.

Don't be surprised about women! They have what it takes! And the alien intruder who challenges their supremacy is asking for a load of grief and nothing else but.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Vital Legislation Comes Up With War Problems Veiling Significance

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Blacked-out by Corregidor-Burma headlines, three bills have been introduced in congress recently which in normal times would have brought an army of lobbyists gnashing their teeth to Washington.

These bills are calculated to make vital, basic changes in our economic system and head off the type of thing which helped bring war to Europe. They provide for:

1. Reforming the patent system so that companies like Standard Oil, General Electric and Alcoa would not be able to cooperate with Germany in hindering production of synthetic rubber, carbolide, and magnesium.

2. Developing U. S. raw materials, such as aluminum clay, so this country will not be caught short again; also so that little companies will get a break in developing them.

3. Registering corporations under the federal government. This would mean that corporations no longer could register under the laws of the state of Delaware which has the most lax corporation regulations in the Union. By requiring federal incorporation, the government could prevent child labor, set up various standards without going to each state for constitutional amendments.

Authors of these three bills are a trio of western senators who have waged unceasing war against monopoly: Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Bob LaFollette of Wisconsin, and Homer Bone of Washington. Working with them behind the scenes is trust-busting Thurman Arnold.

War-Born Monopolies.

For months these three senators watched and helped Arnold expose the iron-clad cartels by which American big business joined with Nazi big business to throttle inventions, hold patents out of circulation, prevent the development of supplies absolutely vital to the U. S. army and navy.

This senatorial trio also has seen how Nazi cartels (monopolies), reaching out for more and more power, helped precipitate war in Europe. So they have determined that now is the time to head off the growth of U. S. monopolies after the war.

Finally they fear that the once liberal New Deal, now throwing more and more war orders to big business in an effort to beat Hitler, runs the grave risk of concentrating economic power in the hands of a few.

That's why they are setting up the legislative framework of economic reform now, before the war is over.

Note: Wyoming's Joe O'Mahoney once was described by a big business executive as "the senator who can stroke a witness at 20 feet, then when he is purring happily, pull the lanyard and blast his economic theories to pieces."

O'Mahoney for years has been crusading against monopoly and the Monopoly committee which he headed paved the way for much of Thurman Arnold's trust-busting.

Female Felix Frankfurter.

The morning after it was revealed that a house committee had questioned Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, White House adviser, about receiving $22,500 from private interests while on the government payroll for $7,500, she telephoned a high administration official in great agitation.

"This is terrible," she exclaimed. "I feel like I am going to have a nervous breakdown. I may have to go to a hospital."

"Why no. get a room next to Sidney Hillman," said the administrationite coldly.

Note: Hillman is recovering from severe exhaustion brought on by his long and strenuous work as former war labor chief. While flat on his back in a hospital, Hillman's elimination from this post was recommended by a group of inner circlers including Mrs. Rosenberg, known as the "Female Felix Frankfurter," because she is always advising people what to do. Unlike Mrs. Rosenberg, Hillman never took a cent of pay from the government during two years of service.

Coughlin's Prosecution?

Backstage, considerable pressure is being brought on the justice department to drop its grand jury investigation of Father Coughlin.

There is no question but that Catholic leaders were strongly behind the justice and postoffice departments in suppressing Social Justice. But apparently some of them believe that the government should draw the line against moving in on the priest himself.

This has created considerable debate inside the justice department. Some officials favor going ahead. Some want to pull punches.

However, the main justice department opinion seems to be that the grand jury should thoroughly probe some of the quotes in Social Justice which were apparently identical with the Goebbels propaganda: and that it ascertain whether there was any link with German agents.

Presidential Race Already..

It seems like a long time to the next presidential elections, but already some quiet skirmishing is going on behind the scenes. One of the skirmishers is Oscar Ewing, attorney for the Aluminum corporation and vice-chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Some time ago, Ewing dropped in to see Vice president Wallace to tell him how he had parted company from the Paul McNutt forces in Indiana when that machine hesitated about dropping overboard bulky boss Frank McHale.

But despite that declaration, Ewing has been one of the active busybodies inside the Democratic national committee to organize for McNutt in 1944. Whenever he sits down with Miss Mae Oliver, assistant treasurer of the committee, or with anyone else from Indiana, almost the first words are: "What can we do about McNutt for president?"

McNutt, himself, probably is too busy to know much about this, but some inside Demos claim that Ewing is trying to make the national committee chiefly a McNutt vehicle.

Merry-Go-Round.

Representative Wesley Disney of Oklahoma has been a staunch champion of the president's foreign policies, but that isn't keeping him from insisting that non-war expenditures must be cut to the bone . . . Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Off hand, the most disheveled place I know is a band-leader's dressingroom on the last night of a four-week booking in a Broadway theater. The confusion attending young men with horns is always magnificent. Let us sneak up to Tommy Dorsey's dressingroom, fifth floor, Paramount theater, Broadway, U. S. A., and verify this.

This is a good size dressingroom. As dressingrooms go, it is enormous. You can turn around in it. You can even take several steps without cracking your hip against a trunk corner.

In Tommy Dorsey's dressingroom, then, I saw 13 pairs of slacks, or trousers, all of varying shades of grey with the exception of two, hanging in picturesque disarray against one wall. Under the trousers was a day-bed. Against a wall, to the left of the blacked-out (for air raids) windows a wardrobe trunk stood open . . . . Across its facade chuckled a rainbow of neckties. . . . Probably three dozen neckties, in different colors. There were a dozen pairs of shoes, mostly white on the floor . . . The make-up table, which stretched the length of one entire wall, looked as though a landing party of marines had just taken over, after a stiff fight . . . Wadded-up empty cigaret packages . . . Two coffee pots, going full blast . . . A rust-colored dressing gown . . . A dozen towels showing the effect of sun-tan, face powder . . . A half-filled bottle of carbonated water that had lost its pep . . . A printed schedule prominently displayed, showing the exact hours of the shows that Dorsey had to play . . . A clock, so that he could meet his schedule . . . A deck of cards and four gin-rummy fiends in the inevitable game . . . Wads of paper about the rugged floor . . . Ashtrays sagging under burnt-out butts . . . newspapers and magazines . . . Telegrams, fan letters . . . suitcases, with a shirt tail sticking out of one . . . Safety razors, tubes of cream, a shaving brush . . . A comb and brush . . . And in the midst of this, immaculate, cheerful grin on his face, Dorsey himself . . . Four weeks on Broadway at the Paramount . . . This was the last night . . . The boys were working for "love" this last week . . . Their take had been turned over to the Army and Navy relief.

"I may go into Music Hall with the Music Hall Symphony as soloist and play a concerto for trombone," observes Dorsey . . . After I leave here it's eight or ten one-nighters, then theaters, then the Astor, then, hell, maybe the Army . . . I'm ready . . . I'll tell you one thing . . . Some day I hope to be a top sergeant . . . There are a couple of guys I want to ride herd on . . . What I'd give to be a top sergeant and have a couple guys I know under me . . . "

A bell rang. A caller stuck his head through the door and sang out, "You're on, Tommy" . . .

Tommy Dorsey hitched his lapels, took a quick glance at his necktie, and leaped into the elevator . . . Off to one side, at the far end of the dressing table, on a tiny electric burner, the coffee pots, both of them, bubbled merrily . . . I had a quiet cup and went down stairs.

Walk With Daughter

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AT EARLY dusk, before the moon came up, my daughter, just 15, said, "Let's take a walk, daddy, you and I. The evening is too beautiful to stay inside."

I thought I was tired,—having worked pretty hard all day—but when she took me confidently by the arm and skipped toward the gravel road, her mood was contagious and we fell into rhythmic step.

"Which way?" I asked her.

"Oh, to Greenwood Hill. That's always fine, but tonight, in the moonlight, it ought to be prettier than ever." We started eastward in the gathering darkness.

She chatted as we walked, of her school activities. "We're having a First Aid class for Scouts, right after school three nights a week . . . it's practical, and fun. When I'm a nurse, I guess first aid will seem like simple stuff . . . we took a walk instead of gym today, because the weather was so beautiful. Whenever we saw a pig or a calf we said 'Hi-Geo-orge! This afternoon we stopped at one girl's house and ate lemon pie. It was swell, with meringue an inch thick . . . her mother certainly knows how to make it! Our gang is going in for tennis now . . . do you think we might build a tennis court out by our barn?"

The killdees screamed in flight along the creek. A night hawk boomed almost vertically toward a tall treetop, then gracefully climbed again. Frogs chorused in all the lowlands. A narrow strip of fog lay just above the greenness of the meadow.

Leisurely we walked until we reached the thin tall trees that mark the upward grade to Greenwood hill. The narrow road cut through ahead was like a shaft of light pointing toward the eastern sky. We followed up, and paused on the abutment of a concrete bridge to look down the wooded slope, fragrant with spruce, and listen to the distant murmur of the stream a hundred feet below.

Two barn owls noiselessly flew across our path, and perched on an ironwood branch in plain view. My companion clutched my arm, pointing. "They're not afraid—I don't believe they've seen us."

Before I could answer they flew away. Slowly we walked down the yellow, sandy road to the old mill that now a farmer uses for a stable. We followed a narrow little path along the Clearfork, through lush blue grass, very wet with dew. When we reached a level ledge, between two sturdy trees, we sat and listened to the liquid, plopping, gurgle of the river. No other sound intruded. The rhythmic surging stream was ever present. The moonlight gleamed upon the silvery water.

"It's as beautiful as a dream, here, isn't it, Daddy?" she remarked in a small voice. "Isn't it wonderful that we live so near? So many people in the world are sad and in trouble—it isn't wrong, is it, for us to be happy?"

I tried to see her clearly, in the moonlight, but something blurred my eyes. "No—it isn't wrong," I said then. "What would be wrong would be if we were not happy—we, who have every good thing."

Murder On the Avenue

By Carolyn Wells

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER VI

"And just exactly how does a soul seethe? Do you know you are talking stark nonsense!"

"But it isn't nonsense! Nadine is mystic."

"That's in her favor. People who go in for cults are very seldom of homicidal instincts."

"No, I don't suppose she'd do it. "Miss Day, I want you to hold our talk confidential. If I find you're telling what we said in here, I shall be greatly mistaken in my judgment of your character."

"I won't tell," said Doris, "I'm a very trustworthy person."

She was dismissed and Raynor asked to see Nadine next. Colby brought her. She entered the room like a tragedy queen.

"It's nearly six o'clock!" she exclaimed angrily. "It's outrageous keeping us here like this!"

"Murder is outrageous, Miss Glenn," Raynor said gravely. "Tell me, of your going upstairs when you heard Miss Day scream."

"Well, Doris was so excited she hardly knew what she was saying. But she said Alma was asleep and wouldn't wake up so I feared something was wrong and I ran up to see."

"It was very late and Mrs. McCleod might well have been worn out. But when you heard she was asleep, why did you at once think there was something wrong."

"That is a trap." Nadine looked at him calmly. "But it doesn't frighten me. Our crowd are young people and we never get what you call 'worn out' from staying up late nights. We always stay up late, and we are never worn out at a party that we drop asleep from fatigue. I felt something was wrong more from Miss Day's manner than her words, and I naturally went up to see. Fortunately Mr. Murray followed me; if I had gone in that room alone, I should have fainted, I know. Indeed, I was so sure there was tragedy, I made Mr. Murray go in first. Then he beckoned to me, and I went in. Mrs. McCleod looked awful! Her face seemed bluish, maybe it was the lights and her lip was cut and bleeding!"

"Then what did you do?" Raynor asked Nadine.

"Then Ogden went to look for Dickson, Mr. McCleod's man. He was hovering in the hall, and Mr. Murray sent him down to get Doctor Lloyd, and when Lloyd came up he sent Ogden and me away."

"Have you any knowledge of any one who could have caused Mrs. McCleod's death?"

"No."

"Have you any idea, any suspicions?"

"None, Captain Raynor. All the guests were her friends, or her husband's, so how could they be suspected?"

"Yet it was done by someone in the house. No one has voiced any suspicion of the servants."

"Oh, no! A servant would have no reason to kill Alma!"

"Why do you say that so positively?"

"Because Alma was the grand sort. She had no association with the servants. They had no access to her, except just the tops."

"The tops?"

"The upper servants, I mean. Foo Chow and Dickson and Linda, her own maid. She never saw the others to speak to."

"What do you know about Linda?"

"Not much. She is a superior maid, and Alma set great store by her. But only as a servant. She never was friendly with her."

"Would Linda, perhaps, resent this?"

"Oh, no. Linda is a perfect servant. And Alma was generous. She gave the girl her cast-off clothes, when they were almost new. She gave her holidays and presents of money now and then, and she remembered her in her will."

"Does Linda know that?"

"I don't know. Probably. But Linda didn't kill her to get the legacy! Don't get that bee in your bonnet!"

"How do you know?"

"I know everything. I am psychic."

"Psychology is a great science, Miss Glenn. But the psychic temperament does not greatly impress policemen."

"No; it requires education to understand it."

Though meant to be scathing, this remark brought only a slight smile to Raynor's eyes, and he went on:

"There were two maids, I understand, looking after the ladies' wraps.

"Yes, an extra, from somewhere. But she cannot be suspected, Dickson had his eye on her."

"I do not suspect her. Nor, at present, any of the servants. Also, an intruder from outside seems to be out of the question. That brings us to the guests again. I daresay, if you suspected anyone, you would not divulge the name?"

"I'm not sure whether I would or not. But I have no suspect."

"That's a pity! For you have told me you know everything—"

"I didn't mean in that sense—but you cannot understand."

"You might be surprised to know how fully I understand. I have made a serious study of psychology, under the best available teachers, and it is useful in my work, at times. Yet plain police inquiry is necessary too. Tell me this, Miss Glenn: Supposing you were assured that it was one of what you call 'her crowd' who killed Mrs. McCleod, would you surmise it was a woman or a man?"

"Man, most likely. A woman can hate harder, but her will isn't strong enough for killing. A man kills in a moment of madness, and repents afterwards."

"You are right—as a rule. But rules have exceptions. You never wanted to put an end to Mrs. McCleod's life, yourself, I suppose?"

"I've been waiting for that. And the truth is, I should have welcomed the news of her death, had it come about by natural causes."

Raynor nodded. "Yes," he said. "Yes. You needn't tell me why, I know. But does it not seem strange to you that a woman so lovely and so beloved should invite murder?"

"You put it strangely. But it is not inexplicable to me. Alma was a queen and a tyrant. She ruled her subjects with a rod of iron, she exacted implicit obedience in all things, and—one time—she went too far."

"Have you thought at all," Raynor said, "as to a motive for the deed?"

"I have often read lists of the most usual motives for murder," Nadine told him, "but in this case, I think it must have been jealousy or sudden, blinding rage."

"Or both?"

"Or both."

They were silent a moment, and then Raynor said: "You have helped me a lot, Miss Glenn. I thank you."

Accepting his tone as a dismissal, she rose to go.

"I may want to see you further, Miss Glenn. Please leave your address with Mr. Barry."

"I will. Captain Raynor, I suppose you will be talking with Mr. Murray."

"Yes."

"Well—and this is not merely ill-nature—take whatever he says with a grain of salt. I mean, if he tells you anything of great interest or importance, have it verified before you act upon it. And don't believe anything he says about me."

"Why not?"

"Because he's down on me. And he will speak against me if he has a chance."

"You stood beside him to look at your dead friend," Raynor spoke gently. "Does not that constitute a bond?"

"Not between me and Ogden Murray, no! It was mere chance that brought that about. He did not love Alma, but he was making use of her."

"How?"

"Oh, just in a matter of finance. He has a new get-rich-quick scheme, and he wanted her to invest in it."

"Did she do so?"

"I'm not sure. I think so. But get his word for it and then get somebody else to corroborate it."

"I see. Is he in love with you?"

"He's not in love with anybody but his own dear self. But he pretends he is."

"Thank you, Miss Glenn."

Barry opened the door for her.

Because of Nadine's hints and implications Raynor called Ogden Murray next.

This new witness came in with a quick, firm step and an assured manner. He took the chair indicated and awaited questioning.

"As one of the first to see Mrs. McCleod after her death, Mr. Murray, will you give me an exact description of her appearance:

"As nearly as I can," Murray said, in a crisp, almost curt tone. "I followed Miss Glenn up the stairs and she was badly frightened, because of Miss Day's scream, she made me go into the room first. I stepped in and crossed over to the couch where Mrs. McCleod lay. I felt sure she was dead, and I beckoned Nadine to come on in."

"What did Miss Glenn say or do?"

She didn't say anything. There was a big pillow on the floor, and she picked it up and threw it on the bed. I don't think she knew she did it, it was a natural gesture for a woman, sort of clearing up, you know."

"And then?"

"That's all. I went to the door and told Dickson to go down and bring up Doctor Lloyd. Then Doctor Lloyd said Alma was dead, and he shooed us out of the room."

"And you and Miss Glenn went downstairs at once?"

"We did."

"Where do your suspicions rest, Mr. Murray?"

"I haven't any suspicions, and if I had they wouldn't rest anywhere. I should be using them to the limit."

"Well, then, who, in your judgment, could not have done it? Do you exonerate all the ladies?"

"I hadn't thought of that. No, I wouldn't put it past al lof them. It does seem more like a woman's deed. A man would shoot or stab or even strangle, but he wouldn't pick up a pillow and smother the girl!"

"You knew Mrs. McCleod very well, Mr. Murray?"

"We all know each other pretty will in our crowd. Frankness is rampant nowdays, but our frankness is not always the truth."

"You mean when one is announcing his life as an open book, there may be some pages stuck together."

"Some pages easily read, but fairy stories."

"Do you ever offer fairy stories, Mr. Murray?"

"About what?"

"About investments, perhaps."

"I'd rather you speak out, Captain Raynor. I don't like veiled allusions."

"Well, really now, that wasn't much veiled. More plainly then, do you deal in business matters that are so attractive an investment, that their description sounds like a fairy tale?"

"My business affairs are not germane to this inquiry, and I decline to answer your irrelevant questions."

"You have practically done so. You saw nothing about the appearance of Mrs. McCleod then, that gave you any hint or clue as to her assailant?"

"I didn't, no. But there was a bracelet—did Miss Glenn tell you about that?"

"A bracelet? No; I think not."

Raynor seemed uninterested. He had already sized Murray up pretty well.

"It seemed to me as if it might be important."

"Yes?"

"Well, see what you think. Nadine and I stood only a few minutes, looking at Alma, when Doctor Lloyd came, but Nadine's quick eye had spotted a new bracelet on Alma's arm,—a bangle she called it."

'And you think that points to her murderer?"

"I don't know, but Nadine said it was a very grand affair. Just a single row of good-sized diamonds."

"The point being, that the bangle was given to Mrs. McCleod very recently?"

"Very, indeed. She had not been wearing it while she was downstairs. The point is that she had just received it, and that it might well have been given her by the murderer."

"Not very plausible? He gave her the expensive gift and then took her life?"

"Plausibility doesn't count in a crime passionel. Alma has many friends; say, one of them gave her the bangle, and then they had a lovers' tiff, and in a rage he grabbed a pillow and, with no intention of killing her he held it over her face an instant too long. There's a theory for you."

"Interesting, but lacking any proof or evidence. . . . But I must ask you directly, were you selling or expecting to sell her any shares or interests in some money-making scheme?"

"Since that has no bearing on the inquiry you are making, I refuse to tell you anything about my financial dealings with Mrs. McCleod, if any."

"Then I shall have to find out in some other way."

"You have my permission to do that."

"That is all, for the present, Mr. Murray. You are excused."

As Murray went out, Dickson appeared at the door, saying that Mr. McCleod begged that his turn might come now, as he wished to go up to his father's apartment.

COUPLE WED HERE TO LIVE IN FINDLAY

Merial Weber Is Bride of Corp. Laurence D. Alexander of State Highway Patrol, In Ceremony Saturday Evening.

IN A QUIET ceremony at the First English Lutheran church at 7:30 p. m. Saturday, Miss Merial Weber became the bride of Corp. Laurence D. Alexander of Findlay, who formerly was with the Mansfield sub-station of the State Highway Patrol. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor.

Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Weber of Galion. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Alexander of Akron are parents of the bridegroom.

Preceding the exchange of vows, organ music was played by Mrs. Fred Lewis. Patrolman and Mrs. William C. Smith, close friends of the couple, were attendants.

For her wedding, the bride wore a two-piece navy and powder blue street-length dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was of orchids and swansonia. Mrs. Smith was attired in a luggage tan and beige frock with accessories in the same shades. She had a corsage of Talisman roses and daisies.

Mrs. Alexander was graduated from Galion high school and has been employed in the office of Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company. Corporal Alexander is a graduate of Central high school, Akron. He attended Akron university and is with the state highway patrol in Findlay. The couple will be at home after May 15 at 326 Washington street in Findlay.

Junior Auxiliary Entertains For Their Mothers

Mothers of the Junior Auxiliary of the American Legion were entertained Sunday afternoon at a Mother's Day tea held at the Legion home, Park avenue west. The Simpson vocal ensemble, under the direction of A. Le Moine Derr, director of vocal music in the Mansfield city schools, sang "In the Gloaming," "The Rose of Tralee" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Miss Barbara Young, five years old, the youngest member of the Juniors, sang "The White Cliffs of Dover."

Greetings were extended to the mothers and guests by Miss Dora McLeod. Miss Margery Hegnauer, junior president, gave a toast to the mothers, and Mrs. Emma Young gave the response. Mrs. Vernon Castor, president of the auxiliary, gave a short talk stressing the privilege of being admitted to the ranks of those who gave their lives for freedom and democracy. Mrs. Robert W. Jones, former director of the juniors, read an appropriate poem, "As Long As Children Pray."

Refreshments were served from a long table, the centerpiece was of yellow tulips in a blue bowl with tall, lighted yellow candles in marine blue candelabra which carried out the auxiliary colors, yellow and blue. Mrs. W. C. Hegnauer presided at the tea table.

Hostesses for the occasion were Jean Boylan, Mary Knapp, Alice Marie Brownscombe, Margaret and Charlotte Lemley, Marilyn Bauer, Wilma Durant and Carol Hamman.

Ugly Duckling Seeks Road To Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"What occupation should a girl choose to follow in order to make love and marriage a sure-fire matter?" asks a girl who signs herself "Ugly Duckling." She was very serious when she wrote me, insisting she isn't pretty, has no style, and that boys don't notice her at all.

To me she's a courageous little Ugly Duckling, and a sensible one. She knows what she wants of life, and instead of just dreaming about it, as girls are traditionally supposed to do, this youngster is willing to work for her goal. But she doesn't want to make a mistake, and so she trustfully puts the whole matter up to me.

She is eighteen. She could stay at home, be domestic and wait. But she is very sure that she would lose out by this method. If she were pretty enough, she says, she could learn to be a "hostess" in a hotel or maybe even in an airplane. But they don't want ugly ducklings in such positions.

Then, there's nursing. She has heard that romance with a doctor is almost certain. Is that true, she asks me? She would be willing to work hard. Or she could be somebody's secretary. But, of course, he would already have a wife.

In short, what do I advise?

If this inexperienced girl were a little older, she would, of course, know that there is certainly no line of work open to a girl that will guarantee her a husband. There's no royal road to romance.

If she has no special background, she will do well, as she clearly realizes, to get out in the world, both to educate herself and to meet men.

In any case, her fate depends upon herself; on her beauty, if she is so fortunate; on her personalty, if she really has one, or on such solid qualities as sound sense and good temper, which I suspect this little Ugly Duckling is supplied with and to which some man sooner or later will respond. In fact, I'm sure this young person will have success whether in wage-earning or in gaining her heart's desire.

To all girls I say, even if you weren't born with the silver spoon that ensures your meeting hundreds of charming eligible young men, scores of whom may wish to marry you, you are entitled to love, marriage, wifehood and motherhood.

How are you going to get these things?

Chance is likely to favor you. In a year or so from now, perhaps you and the Perfect Lover may be saying to each other? "Wasn't it the most divinely strange thing that we ever met? Who would have dreamed that it could happen?" And so on.

Or perhaps, in your own case, because of conspicuous loveliness or charm, a desirable fate is pretty much of a certainty.

What it al boils down to is that a girl mustn't be content to be helpless in this or any other matter. She must try to be a Somebody in a world where there are too many Nobodies. Thus, she will be equipped to meet romance half way.

Mothers, Point Out the Beauty Road to Child

By MME QUI VIVE

It comes as a surprise to many a mother that little daughter, five or six years old, has definite ideas as to what kind of clothes she wants to wear. Let mothers remember that they are dealing with the new-woman-in-the-making. When they were six they may have been just as smart, but they did not have the privilege of expressing their opinions. Certainly not to the extent that children now express theirs. And any woman, coming in contact with children, must realize that they are more advanced in thought and ideas than they were a generation ago. Educational methods are better. There's the radio telling them all about everything.

Boys are different, too. They have the same old hatred for dressed up clothes, definite ideas about school attire. A clerk in a large department store tells me that boys are fussier about clothes than girls, that she'd rather wait on a ten-year-old girl than a ten-year-old boy any day. That's another slant on the situation.

A little girl should be permitted to say what clothes she prefers. Forcing her to wear a frock she dislikes makes her self-conscious and unhappy. Her selections can be directed by a tactful mother. If the mother has good taste and good judgment, chances are there will be no conflict.

As nice a birthday gift as any little girl can receive is a set of toilet articles — mirror, brush, comb, nail brush, nail file, scissors, buffer, nail powder, orangewood stick. If she can have her own dressing table she will take pride in it. She will need a hand lotion and a cold cream to use when her precious nose gets sunburned. She'll love bath salts. With these glamor gadgets and preparations she will attend to her grooming duties. And mother will never hear a howl out of her when told to scrub her teeth. That's a part of the good looks schedule.

If she is told that eating habits, outdoor play, regular sleeping hours will aid appearance, she will be more likely to step in line than if she hears about health. To children, health is a tiresome subject about which adults love to gab.

When the little girl first begins to talk she should be taught to say "please" and "thank you." Good manners are a passport that everyone recognizes.

As she grows older she must assume responsibilities in the home—pick up her clothes, never leave the papers on the floor, do her little share. If mother reads good books to her, she will develop an appreciation of literature. She should not be scolded or nagged, but be told why misbehavior is a stupid mistake.

The wise mother will give daughter the right kind of a start, which will oil the wheels of daughter's life for years to come.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I WAS malicious enough to feel unadulterated glee when "Charles," the supposed servant of Professor Diswell but who, I knew now, was Jack Bickett my long lost cousin, started violently as I addressed him as "Shawn Rue."

He pulled himself together in an instant, and presented an apparently unperturbed countenance to my steady gaze. But old Professor Diswell was not so poised. Before Jack could speak he had gasped out "Why do you call him that? Have you found out—"

"She's probably been looking up telephone records," Jack said smoothly, "and discovered that when I telephoned you a month ago, I gave you the name which Jack Bicket said would make you certain that I came from him. But just what did you mean by addressing me in that fashion, Mrs. Graham, I believe the name is?"

Irritated Her As a Child

He was so smoothly insolent that I would have dearly liked to box his ears, as I used to do roundly in our childish quarrels. He had possessed that smoothly silken insolence to perfection even then.

And I never had forgotten that early tone, and in our later association I had heard him use it with telling effect upon people, who, in his opinion, needed to be "squelched," a word frequently upon his lips.

It was patent that he did not wish me to recognize him, and was making a desperate effort to forestall such a recognition. But I was perverse enough to thwart that effort, and I salved my conscience by telling myself that no matter how strong his motive for wishing to remain incognito, I had a stronger one for defeating it.

Marion's rescue was paramount to everything else, and I knew that my father would consider my discovery as of the greatest importance, and would expect me to bring Jack to him as soon as I should reach the city.

I shot a swift glance over my shoulder. Joe and Gus were in the front seat absorbed in some low-voiced colloquy of their own, although Joe's eyes were fixed on the road unrolling before the armored car.

"Yes, the name is Graham," I said, "as you know very well; as well, indeed, as I know that you are my cousin Jack Bickett."

He jerked his head around and shot a disturbed glance at the two men in front, then turned his noncommittal face to mine again.

"They cannot possibly hear you," I murmured, "but if you carry on this foolish denial of your identity any longer, I shall shout your name so loudly that they cannot avoid hearing it. You can't 'squelch' me, Jack Bickett, and don't you think you can. You used to try it when we were children, but you never succeeded."

Admits He Is Jack.

He stared at me for a long second through his dark glasses, evidently measuring my determination.

"And you can't stare me down either," I snapped a bit petishly, but careful to keep my voice to a murmur. "You never could, and you never will."

Suddenly a slow, sardonic grin touched the corners of his mouth.

"You're an unholy blackmailer, but you win. And now that you know, what are you going to do about it?"

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, May 12.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A definite promise is found in this day's astral configurations for the inception, development and fruitful culmination of projects and ventures of large scope and significance. This may be in collaboration with important bodies and through means of well organized strategies and techniques. It is a time for pushing to high goals and with confidence and assurance of help from the most influential sources. Cultivate these with diplomacy and tact in spite of small setbacks or peculiar annoyances. In private affairs be discreet.

Those whose birthday it is may have the assurance of a successful attainment of their high ambitions, with the hearty support of those in power and public standing, with all manner of major corporations and fraternal or political groups ready to assist in well-laid plans and clever strategies. There may be trivial anxieties or surprising twists to these, but use finesse in approaching influential personages. Also be circumspect in personal relations and conduct.

A child born on this day should have high ambitions with much ability and personal strategy and tact for attaining outstanding success and prestige. Its splendid trats may gain public acclaim.

LITTLE BOY BLUE

Recipes for Sugarless Desserts

By BETSY NEWMAN

For health, serve liver occasionally, once a week if you can; once in two weeks anyhow. You needn't use calf's liver which is expensive. I get tender beef liver, or pork. Then for dessert today I'm suggesting that you make spoon bread and serve it with maple syrup.

Today's Menu.

Liver Loaf or Patties
Baked Potatoes
Buttered Young Beets
Spring Salad
Spoon Bread Syrup
Coffee or Tea

Liver Loaf or Patties.

1 lb. beef liver
1 small onion
5 slices bacon
1 tbsp. bacon fat
⅔ c. irridated evaported milk mixed with ⅓ c. liquor from liver or
⅔ c. bottled milk
1 tbsp. flour
⅔ c. bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ tsp. salt

Buy liver in 1 piece, wash and skin. Simmer 45 minutes without adding water, then remove large veins and put through food chopper with onion. Dice bacon fine, fry out fat; drain on absorbent paper. Prepare a sauce of fat, flour, salt and milk. Combine all ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Form into loaf 2 inches high and put in greased pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 45 minutes. If necessary, pour ¼ cup water around loaf to keep moist. Serve with tomato sauce if desired. You may make individual patties instead of loaf if preferred. The should be baked 20 to 30 minutes or until throroughly done.

Spoon Bread No. 1.

¾ c. corn meal
2 cps. boiling water
⅔ c. irridated evaporated milk or
⅔ c. rich bottled milk.
3 tbsps. butter
2 eggs
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt

Add corn meal slowly to briskly boiling, salted water and boil until just thickened, stirring frequently. Add butter. Beat egg yolks, add milk and stir into corn meal. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and baking powder. Turn into buttered baking dish and bake in moderate over (375° F.) until brown, about 40 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Spoon Bread No. 2.

½ c. corn meal
1 c. boiling water
½ tsp. salt
½ tbsp. butter
2 egs
1 c. bottled milk

Add corn meal slowly to boiling water, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and add salt and butter. Add milk and beaten egg yolks, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased shallow dish. Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) for about 50 minutes. Serves 6.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY

Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

EVEN MORE BASIC

There is something even more fundamental to good bridge than the consistent habit of thinking about each thing you do, in the bidding or in the play. It is to use your senses of hearing and sight. Unless you hear every bid clearly and take notice of the exact size of every card which comes into view, not all the thinking in the world can get you results in the long run. So, as one ancient mariner used to say, "keep your weather eye peeled and wax out of your ears."

North on this deal was a chap whose glasses were none too well fitted to his sight. He leaned part way across the table to take a quick glance at the dummy's cards, after East led the heart Q and then began to play. After West took the third heart and led the spade 10 to the A, the declarer cashed the diamond A, Q and K and then was ready to play the clubs.

The club 3 was led for a finesse of the 10 and, after the diamond 5 to the 7 furnished re-entry to the dummy, the club 9 brought the J and Q and the club A was laid down. When this failed to drop the K, the contract was beaten, as only the worthless spade 9 and club 5 were left.

If the declarer had looked a little more closely and had noticed that the three little clubs in dummy were headed by the 9-8, he could have made his contract by leading the 9. West's best play would have been the J, the Q winning. After the diamond 7 furnished re-entry to the dummy, a lead the club 8 would have dropped West's K, no matter what he did, and the contract would have been made, a spade being given up at the end.

KOBACKER'S

Parent Should Teach Child Self-Denial

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

WE PARENTS and our children are learning to do without many things we once enjoyed. But the small hardships we have already faced are but a drop in the bucket to what we will experience within a year or two. Most of us can take it without grumbling. We might have taken it more gracefully if we had exercised more self-denials in recently past years.

Many children, especially in the early teens, will not be so ready to adapt themselves to the necessary denials ahead. They have been so long accustomed to luxuries and to having practically all their wishes gratified that some of them will bring strong pressure on their parents to go on spending for luxuries even when conscience dictates otherwise.

So far as possible, we parents should paint the picture ahead as darkly as we see it and let young people know that we all are up against. Groups of parents on any block or in local communities, especially through the Parent Teachers Association, should sit down together and consider these matters and agree on standards for their children and youths.

Begin With Young Child.

The easiest time to build good habits and attitudes, the easiest time to cultivate wholesome self-denials and thrift is when the child is very young. Steel yourself against supplying nearly all his wants, having provided him with the possible essentials for health and protection. Dress him economically in simple clothes.

Don't take your young daughter for a permanent. Let your children learn to enjoy wearing made-over clothing or hand-me-downs. Let the adolescent girl realize that she doesn't have to have the latest styles or take frequent trips to the beauty parlor. Don't be so cowardly as to let your child force you to try to keep up with the Joneses in her dress or your own. The Joneses also might help were they to choose a more moderate standard.

Don't suppose that you must bring home a toy or other gift for your tot or runabout every time you go shopping. Doting grandparents and other relatives can help. It is comparatively easy for any child or youth to accept restrictions which apply to most of his friends.

Family Agreement.

There might well be family agreement on cut in money spent on all luxuries, nights out, and use of the family car. Let the amount of money spent just for pleasure be cut appreciably. Many youths might gain in independence, self-reliance and responsibility were they to set aside part of their allowance for defense saving stamps. While it is better for the child to be led to this choice, in some instances it should be required.

Recently I heard a mother say that her ten-year-old daughter is voluntarily using 15 cents each week out of her allowance of twenty-five cents to buy savings stamps. See what character values we might develop in children through inducing them to volunteer such savings. See, moreover, how it would contribute to national morale and national defense.

If you wish to economize on toys for children from two to seven or eight, you might make sets of blocks at home or have a carpenter do so for you. Mrs. Myers and I have designed such a set of blocks whose measurements may be had without cost to you by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three cent stamp on it. In like manner you may have my special bulletin on allowances.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. How may one receive a group of desirable prayers for the little child, including grace at table?

A. By writing me at 235 East 45th Street, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, you may receive, without cost, such a group of prayers. You may also receive a copy of my "Prayer for Parents."

Q. What is the most profitable time for a student to review notes taken in class?

A. Not later than the evening of the same day. My "Tips to Students" may be had, without cost, by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Tomorrow's Problem.

DINNERS HONOR GALION MOTHERS IN 2 CHURCHES

Sunday School Classes Pay Tributes; Prizes Awarded Contest Winners.

GALION — Mothers were honored by two churches Friday evening when Mother-Daughter banquets were held.

At the Market Street Methodist church the dinner was sponsored by members of the Friendship class. Mrs. Joseph Bishop was the acting toastmistress, while Mrs. Lloyd Ridenour gave the toast to the mothers, with the response by Mrs. T. A. Johnston.

Contest prizes were awarded to Miss Laura Koppe, Mrs. Cora Walters, and Oweda Gilson. Group singing, with each mother present choosing her favorite hymn, was enjoyed with Mrs. West at the piano.

Members of the Wide Awake class of the Church of Christ held their party at the church parlors with 16 mothers and daughters present.

Class members presented a miscellaneous program after which carnations were given to the members and guests. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Mrs. M. E. Cass, Cherry street, received a Mother's day cablegram from her son, Robert, who is stationed in the technical division of the Air Corps in Australia.

altitudes — so low that it was necessary to avoid barrage balloons. The selected targets were unmistakable and were accurately attacked with demolition and incendiary bombs.

"Military, naval and industrial plants were the objectives in the vicinity of Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, and other localities. Large fires were started which continued to burn in some instances for at least two days.

"An interesting sidelight on the raid was the fact that as the planes approached Japan a propaganda broadcast in English was being transmitted by a Tokyo radio station. The announcer was detailing the pleasures of life in Japan and the freedom from fear of bombing.

"Suddenly, this program was cut off, and a warning was broadcast in Japanese to the extent that Tokyo was then being bombed by a great number of low-flying airplanes which were traveling at terrific speed.

"The Japanese announcer stated that these planes were moving too fast to be overtaken. He later reported that three Japanese interceptor planes had been lost.

"Later in the afternoon a further broadcast announced that there were between three and four thousand casualties. The Japanese people were asked to pray for rain to extinguish the fires and to decrease the chance for further air raids.

"Subsequently, the tone of the broadcast became less feverish and it was announced that only hospitals, schools, and other points of no possible military value had been bombed and that even then the damage had been slight.

"Forty-eight hours later the Tokyo broadcaster reported that no fires started during the raid were then under control."

There was no confirmation of Japanese reports at the time that nine planes had been shot down

BUCYRUS — The defense program has given Bucyrus bicycle owners a temporary break.

May 1 was set by city council as the deadline for purchase of new bicycle licenses but the tags have not arrived although they were reported to have been shipped in April.

Police Chief Arthur Stuckert said transportation problems resulting from the defense program has caused the delay.

PRESENT RINGS TO RESERVES

GALION — Girl Reserve rings were presented when the annual Mother-Daughter banquet was held Saturday evening at Peace Lutheran church. The rings were presented by Waldene Rhoades, ring chairman.

Martha Ritzhaupt, the recently elected president, introduced her officers for the coming year, who include Ruth Ulmer as vice president; Agnes Harbourt, secretary; and Marjorie Mellott, treasurer. The musical program which followed was presented by Mrs. Harry Curl and her two children.

Guests for the banquet were Miss Grace Weston, Mrs. M. A. Povenmire, Mrs. E. R. Pickering, Mr. and Mrs. Sindlinger, and Mrs. Curl.

CHURCHES MARK MOTHER'S DAY

Special Programs Conducted at Shelby, Youth Groups Entertain.

SHELBY—Shelby churches observed Mother's day on Sunday with special services.

The Methodist Youth Fellowship entertained mothers of First Methodist church at a special program Sunday evening at that church. Miss Betty Hart, president of the youth group, had general charge of the program.

Rev. J. C. Searle spoke on "A Great Woman" at the services Sunday morning at United Brethren church.

A Mothers and Daughters' tea was served at the First Church of Christ during the afternoon. Entertainment was furnished by the high school age young people. Because of the tea, the regular youth meetings were not held at that church.

Other appropriate services were held at the First Lutheran, First Baptist, First Presbyterian, Church of Nazarene, First Evangelical and Reformed and St. Mark's Episcopal churches.

BRIDGE PARTY

CRESTLINE — Presiding as joint hostesses for a dinner-bridge party for members of the L. M. M. club Friday evening, Mrs. May Mann and Mrs. E. S. Marsh took their guests to Greenlawn, west of town, for dinner.

Following the dinner card games progressed at the home of Mrs. Mann with Miss Grace Peppard and Mrs. George Beck winning score gifts.

A picnic was planned by the group for June.

ANNUAL POPPY SALE DATE SET

Bucyrus Veterans of Foreign Wars to Conduct Benefit Affair on May 23.

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus Veterans of Foreign War Auxiliary has set May 23 as the date for the annual poppy sale.

The auxiliary was inspected at its meeting by Mrs. Ruby Stone of Sandusky, first district president. Mrs. John Auck, newly-installed president, announced committee appointments. Initiatory services were conducted for Miss Pauline Jenkins, the president's daughter.

Announcement was made that the group is purchasing a $25 war bond monthly and a cash donation was made to nurses of the first World war who are in a home at Dayton.

Need for additional air raid warning tests was cited here today following Bucyrus' first official air raid warning.

Civilian defense officials said the initial test indicated a weakness in the west and southwest sections of the city, where the sirens were rather faint, especially indoors.

Special interior alarms may be installed in factories, according to Zone Warden Fred Ward.

A talk on Australia and other sections of the war-torn south Pacific by Miss Theodore M. Blake of Bedford, feature the annual guest meeting of the Catholic Women's Study club held at the King's Daughters chapter house.

The British, the speaker said, have seemed to realize that one cannot twist humanity into, a pattern, particularly the patriarchial type which is found in New Zealand, which is one reason why these people and the British get along so well.

Miss Blake stated that the future of civilization, its framework and the policies of these people in the southwest Pacific lie with us and the other democracies rather than the yellow man whose idea of empire is enslavement.

Miss Della Menninger, club president, welcomed guests. Hostesses included Mrs. John Dostal, Mrs. Fred Heydinger, Mrs. H. Clair Hubble, Mrs. Charles D. Hutchison, Mrs. E. L. Liggett, Mrs. Herman Long, Mrs. Leonard Messig and Mrs. A. W. Spaeth.

AGNES M'MAHON NAMED HEAD OF CRESTLINE STUDY GROUP

CRESTLINE— Annual election of officers featured the concluding session of the current series of meetings of the St. Helen Study club Friday evening at the home of Kathleen and Helen Mayer with Mrs. Elmer Cash associate.

Agnes McMahon was elected president and will succeed Mrs. Robert Metz who presided.

Mrs. Edmund Wagner was elected vice president, and Helen Frisce secretary-treasurer.

The group discussed the topic for programs for next season's meetings. This was left to the program committee which was appointed by the new president and is composed of Kathleen Mayer, Dorothy McMahon, Dorothy Horning and Mrs. Wagner.

The following were appointed to the membership committee, Mrs. Cash, Helen Mayer and Mrs. Frank Mahlek.

Meetings formerly scheduled for the second Friday of the month have been changed to the second Monday.

The evening's program consisted of a paper on "Ceremonies of Mass," read by Dorothy McMahon.

Meetings will be resumed in October.

FREED ON BOND

BUCYRUS—Release of Charles Smith and Norman Banks, both of Bucyrus, who have been held in the county jail here on charges of house-breaking, was reported today by Sheriff Albert French. They were freed on bonds of $1,000 each, pending review of their cases before the grand jury.

The pair was charged, along with Charles Davis, a minor, with breaking into the home of Philip Frost of near Bucyrus, April 4 and stealing property valued at $25.

Gas Rationing Starts on 'Honor System'

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

British Premier Churchill's broadcast last night strikes me as containing more really sun-lit optimism — "A Message of Good Cheer," as he called it—than any of his previous pronouncements, which have borne heavily on the subject of sweat, blood and tears.

Into his summary of the military position the premier really injected a note of triumphant certainty that the Allies are marching to victory. Because Churchill is conservative, studiously avoiding exaggeration it is good to hear him declare that "we are moving through many reverses and defeats to complete and final victory.

But Churchill's talk wasn't all pleasant. He injected a horror into it by announcing that the Russians believe "the Germans in the desperation of their assault may make use of poison gas against the armies and people of Russia." With that the premier grimly warned Hitler that if the latter resorts to such measures, the British will use their "great and growing air superiority in the west to carry gas warfare on the largest possible scale far and wide against military objectives in Germany."

Churchill said the British are resolved not to use "this odious weapon" unless it is first employed by the Germans.

"Knowing our Hun, however," he added, "we have not neglected to make preparations on a formidable scale."

The halt in the battle of the Coral sea easily may be merely a breathing spell after the first phase of a great engagement which will continue to swell until it has much to do with determining the control of the southwest Pacific.

It will be passing strange if this fierce clash between combined air and naval forces is being dropped like a hot potato. It's probable that the Jap fleet will obtain reinforcements and return to the assault, or that General MacArthur will find himself in a more favorable position to initiate a further offensive against bases from which the Nipponese are threatening Australia and American communications.

We still lack details to enable us to appraise the full significance of this initial round, and it may be a considerable time before we secure all the facts. However, it is clear that we have dealt the enemy a heavy blow.

CHIEF CENSOR WARNS RADIO ON BROADCASTS

Requests Stations Follow 'Rule of Reason' in Giving War News.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Byron Price, director of the Office of Censorship, urged today that radio follow the "rule of reason" in its role of voluntarily keeping information from the enemy while continuing to give the public "comprehensive news about the war."

In an address prepared for the annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters, Price put the final responsibility upon station operators not only for the proper broadcasting of news dispatches, but also for the activities of commentators and news analysts. He warned against "speculation and prediction which makes itself the vehicle for smuggling of dangerous information."

It is not too much to say, he continued, "that the success or failure of voluntary co-operation in broadcasting will depend upon the degree of control which patriotic broadcasters exercise over the operation of their stations."

Of deepest concern, he said, is the error which results from "thoughtlessness or carelessness," rather than from faulty judgment.

"To those who are trying to keep information from the enemy, the magnitude of radio as a facility of communication is appalling," said the censorship chief.

He stated the problem: "On the one hand there are agencies of the government which, because of the particular responsibilities assigned to them, are naturally skeptical of every disclosure. On the other hand are the press, the radio, and the public anxious for a maximum of news.

"Each of these groups is eager to help the other; in fact the consoling and encouraging element is that no one worthy of the name of American, be he broadcaster, reporter, navy officer, buck private, or plain citizen, wants to endanger a single life by disclosing something which should be kept secret."

Then he asserted: "You can only resolve such situations by the rule of reason. Narrow thinking, on either side, can lead only to ridiculous results and national harm."

400 PRESENT AT LECTURE SUNDAY

Address Given By Speaker From Mother Church of Scientist Followers.

More than 400 persons attended the lecture on Christian Science delivered Sunday afternoon at John Simpson auditorium by Frank Bell, member of the board of lectureship of The Mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The lecture was sponsored by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Mansfield. The speaker said, in part:

"Reason agrees with revelation that non-intelligence is naturally subject to intelligence, that matter is not the master of mind. This logical line of thinking becomes clearer as human progress presses forward. The hold of materialism is loosening, not only in philosophic theory but in practical affairs.

"Liberated thought manifests itself, step by step, in the realm of human invention. Despite the frequent abuse of man's newfound dominion over things, the broad view shows the forward movement to be essentially in the right direction.

"When the human voice encircles the globe in a moment, when an ocean of space is but a day's journey and a traveler may cross a continent in a few hours, it would be a dull thinker indeed who would deny that man is on his way toward understanding of omnipresent being. Time and space are being shorn so rapidly of power to obstruct human movement that we may well consider what may be required of us in readjusting the sense of self to the entire absence of physical interference. The Christian is somewhat prepared for this unfoldment. He reads in his Bible that without annulling any law the Founder of Christianity demonstrated the inability of matter to prevent his being on the other side of the sea immediately, and that St. Paul urged the importance of recognizing that man lives, moves, and has his being in infinite Spirit, God.

"When the ultimate of human inventive genius has been attained and there remains no suggestion of material hindrance to man's 'dominion . . . over all the earth,' will anything have been accomplished that was not always the spiritual fact, affirmed in Christian teaching and proved in the deeds of the pure thinker, Jesus of Nazareth?"

MAN WHO SHOT TRAIN ENGINEER CONFESSES PRO-NAZI LEANINGS

(By International News Service)

ELYRIA—A fantastic one-man attempt by an admitted pro-Nazi to halt movements of war materials by shooting at train engineers was disclosed by authorities today as they held Donald Kintner, 20, who allegedly confessed that he wounded the engineer at the throttle of a train hauling war goods.

Lorain County Sheriff Carl H. Finnegan said the youth, son of an Elyria, O., real estate dealer, confessed he acted thus "because my sympathies were with Germany."

"I had thought of joining the German army, but gave it up and decided to stop movements of war materials instead," Kintner was quoted by the sheriff. The youth spoke coherently, the sheriff said.

F. J. Becker, 53-year-old engineer of the New York Central railroad, was wounded when shot from ambush with a rifle, but a fireman jumped to the controls and brought the freight train safely into Sandusky, Becker is recovering.

The sheriff quoted the youth as saying he first attempted unsuccessfully to wreck a train signal system by shooting at a battery station, and then decided to shoot train engineers.

The youth was held for possible federal action after sheriff's deputies and FBI men arrested him in weeds near the railroad track where, he said, he was waiting to fire at the engineer of another train.

Kintner lives near the scene of the shooting, three miles west of Elyria.

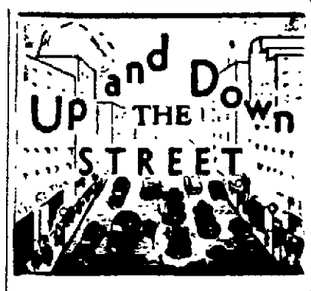
"Do you have to trade me in on the new model?"

Up and Down THE STREET



Sheriff Frank E. Robinson is having a bit of trouble with the direct telephone line between his office and Army corps air raid warning headquarters at Sandusky, O. The line is supposed to be kept open so that Army observers may flash word of any possible attack instantly. Although the telephone number is not listed and is not released to the public, Robinson's deputies have been receiving several calls over the phone. Most of them have been wrong numbers dialed by Mansfield residents. One of the callers was trying to reach a downtown Mansfield cafe.

CARDS TO BE MADE OUT ON MILEAGE BASIS

Registrars to Depend on Honesty of Motorists in Distribution.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The amount of gasoline eastern motorists will be allowed to buy starting Friday will depend on "honor system" answers given during registration this week, office of price administration officials said today.

Registration for gasoline cards starts in the elementary schools tomorrow. Effective Friday, a motorist must have a card to buy gasoline in the District of Columbia and 17 eastern states.

Ration cards will vary from those for non-essential motorists who will be allowed about three gallons of gasoline each week to those for doctors, government officials and other essential services — "X" cards — which will allow purchase of an unlimited quantity.

The type of card issued will depend upon a motorist's answer to this question:

"What is the total average daily mileage customarily driven in the car described above to and from work and to carry on work?"

The applicant's word will be taken for the answer given and officials said they were depending upon the honesty of the American people to prevent "chiseling." They conceded that there was the possibility of falsification or exaggeration by some persons, but said they depended upon public pressure to take care of that.

If the motorist answers that his total essential daily average mileage is less than six miles, he will get an "A" ration card, good for 21 gallons of gasoline during the 47-day period from May 15 to July 1, when a permanent rationing system will be set up.

If the motorist drives from six to 10 miles daily, he gets ration card "B-1" good for 33 gallons; 11 to 14 miles, a "B-2" card good for 45 gallons, and more than 14 miles, a "B-3" card for 57 gallons.

Buses, trucks and other commercial vehicles which are clearly identifiable will not need any cards at all.

The war production board is expected to act favorably in the next few days on the recommendations of the office of petroleum co-ordinator that 93 western counties of New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland be exempted from the rationing regulations because of local gasoline production.

Pledges Supplies Will Continue To Reach Chinese

NEW DELHI —(INS)— "Regardless of what may be the final outcome of the military campaign in Burma, the United States is not going to let China down. The supplies will continue to reach Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's men."

This pledge was on record today by Brig. Gen. Thomas Hearn, chief of staff to Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell who commands the fifth and sixth Chinese armies fighting in Burma and the south China province of Yunnan.

In an interview, Hearn revealed that huge supplies accumulated at Rangoon had been moved to safe warehouses to the north before fall of the town, and that these supplies were being sent into China as needed.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Harry Mehock had himself a full column in the Fremont News-Messenger the other day as sports scribe Dick Behr did over the column I had here a few days earlier on Mehock's explosion over the way the Ohio High School Principals association was clamping down on the Ohio High School Athletic association.

In the main, Behr had no complaint to make with Mehock's views on the subject, but he refused to become alarmed over the Mansfield coach's prediction that soon the principals would attempt to trim football schedules to four games and short trips.

This could never happen, says the complacent Behr, "unless it's decided to junk the entire athletic program. Because football pays the freight for every sport, with the possible exception of basketball."

And is there any reason to suspect that the principals are interested in freight charges? I may ask.

* * *

Basketball pays the freight for the Ohio High School Athletic association through the association's cut of the gate at county, district and state tournaments. But the principals have put the foot down on the basketball tournaments for next year.

* * *

You'll be interested in a story on this page today by Fritz Howell, in which he quotes Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend as saying that the principals now want the word "Athletic" dropped from the Ohio High School Athletic association.

They want the association to take charge of all scholastic extra-curricular activities. And who do you suppose would run the association then? The principals!

Does anyone still doubt that the principals are campaigning for complete authority?

* * *

Behr expressed surprise that Townsend had advised Mehock to write to some one in Attica, O., to make his bid for the district cage tourney.

"Why," says Behr, "should a class B school official have anything to do with a class A. tournament?"

Because that's the way the state association is set up And so long as the class B. schools have more votes than the class A., so long will they continue to set the rules for the association.

* * *

Fremont wants that district tournament itself. Even though it now has the district track and swimming meets.

Birds, Millers Break Even

Put on Wild Display of Diamond Pastime.

(By Associated Press)

Minneapolis and Columbus put on the wildest display of baseball thus far in the American association season to enliven a Sunday of doubleheaders all of which were divided

* * *

The Millers took the opener, 2-1, as Owen Scheetz pitched six-hit ball. He doubled in the seventh and scored to break a 1-all tie when Lou Klein allowed a grounder to leak through.

Columbus, now in last place, won the turbulent 11-inning nightcap, 3-2, on the strength of rookie Ted Wilkes' 4-hitter and a wild throw by Rabbit Warsler Wilkes had a perfect game in the bag until the seventh. He had retired the first 19 batters and the Birds clung to a 1-0 lead.

But Bill Bacnacle singled in the seventh for the first Minneapolis hit. August Bergamo, attempting to complete a double play, hit Barnacle in the back and he scampered to third on the misplay. He jogged home as outfielder Moss muffed the ball trying to retrieve it.

The Birds went ahead in the ninth, but Hub Walker's ninth homer of the season equalled the tally. The Birds salted away the win in the 11th when Lukon doubled and later scored on Warstler's erratic throw into the dirt at first base.

* * *

Kansas City beat Indianapolis in the first game 4-3 and the Indians won the second 1-0. Milwaukee beat Louisville 8 to 4 then lost 6 to 2. Toledo won the opener from St. Paul, 4-3, but the Saints evened it up in the nightcap, 2-1.

Series Rivals Leading

Yankees and Dodgers Seek Return Booking.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

IT'S a long way to the World Series, but the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers appear to be heading toward a return engagement in that October classic.

Both teams strengthened their positions at the head of their respective pennant races yesterday while their closest pursuers were knocking each other off or being kicked around by upstarts from the second division.

The accent was on pitching in the day's 15-game program. A total of 18 hurlers went the distance.

Among the major league parks open for business, all except St. Louis drew at least 20,000 fans. New York's Yankee Stadium topped the list with 40,744. Paid attendance for the day was 184,879, with the American league playing to 95,928 and the National 88,951.

In the only singleton of the afternoon, the Brooklyn Dodgers stretched their National league lead to two and a half games by dumping the New York Giants, 5-3, as the second place Pittsburgh Pirates split with the Chicago Cubs and the Cincinnati Reds knocked the St. Louis Cardinals out of third place with a double shutout.

Rookie Ed Head limited the Giants to eight scattered hits in gaining his fourth straight triumph for the Dodgers.

Phil Cavarretta drove in the runs which gave the Cubs a 4-2 triumph over Pittsburgh in the first game at Chicago, but Bob Klinger pitched the Pirates to a 3-2 win in the afterpiece, yielding only five hits.

Bucky Walters returned to his oldtime pitching form at Cincinnati shutting out the Cardinals, 3-0, on four hits in the second game after Ray Starr had racked up his third straight mound decision by blanking the Cards, 1-0, in the opener.

The double defeat pulled the Cards into a fourth place tie with the Reds and turned third place over to the Boston Braves, who divided a twin bill with the Philadelphia Phils.

The Braves won the first game, 5-1, but Ernie Koy blasted a three-run homer that gave the Phils the nightcap, 4-3

In New York, the Yankees stretched their current winning streak to seven games and hiked their American league lead to two lengths with a twin win over the Washington Senators as Cleveland and Detroit split and the Philadelphia Athletics knocked off the Boston Red Sox twice.

A squeeze play in the ninth inning scored the run that gave the Yanks the first game, 4-3, and the second game went ten innings before Jack Wilson uncorked a wild pitch with a man on third, handing the world champions a 3-2 decision. Red Ruffing and Marius Russo were the winning pitchers.

Tommy Bridges pitched five-hit ball in giving the Detroit Tigers a 5-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the first game, but the Tribe snapped a six-game losing streak to take the second, 6-5 in ten innings.

* * *

Big Bob Johnson's bat knocked the Boston Red Sox out of a second place tie with Cleveland and into fourth place behind Detroit as the Athletics swept the bargain bill, 4-2 and 6-5 Johnson collected six hits in eight trips to the plate including a homer in each game.

The St Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox divided their double-header the Browns taking the opener, 5-2, and the Sox the finale, 9-7

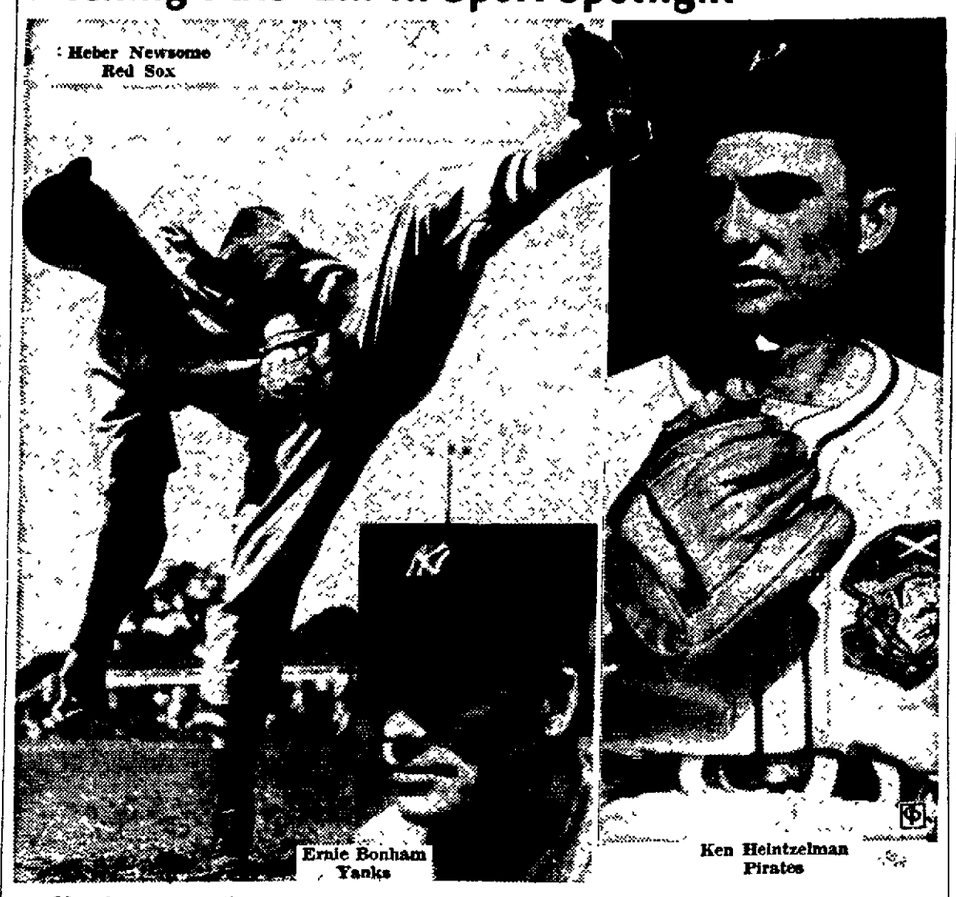
Pitching Puts 'Em In Sport Spotlight



Heber Newsome, Red Sox

Ernie Bonham, Yanks

Ken Heintzelman, Pirates

Mound work of these three young major leaguers projects them into the sports spotlight. Heber Newsome, ace of the Boston Red Sox staff, won four games without defeat up to the second week in May. Ernie Bonham of the Yanks has an equally-as-good record. Ken Heintzelman, Pittsburgh southpaw, is leading the National league slabmen.

Reds Reach 1st Division

Hit High Altitude For First Time.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Idle today, the Cincinnati Reds were in the league's first division for the first time in this four-week-old season—the result of two shutouts over St Louis yesterday.

The 1-0 and 3-0 triumphs, added to a 5-2 victory Saturday, enabled the Reds to square accounts with the Gashouse swatters at three-and-three and tie them for fourth place at a dozen victories and a dozen defeats.

The twinbill sweep before 20,232 fans, largest turnout here since opening day, earned the Reds an even break in their 14-game home stand. They go east today for 11 games with seven wins in their last nine starts.

Ray Starr, who was shunted around the minor leagues for 10 years before the Cards gave him his first brief chance in the big-time daubed a 1-0 whitewash on the Redbirds in the opener; and Bucky Walters pitched and batted the Redlegs to a 3-0 night cap victory

Four fast double plays helped Starr to his third straight victory. He gave nine hits—two more than Mort Cooper who fanned seven.

The game's only run came in the fifth Outfielder Max Marshall, acquired from the Cards' Columbus farm last Wednesday, singled home Lonnie Frey.

Bucky limited the Cards to three singles and a double and whiffed 10 in besting Rookie John Beazley, who held the Reds to five safeties.

* * *

Terry Moore, his back against the centerfield wall, let Frank McCormick's liner slip off his outstretched fingertips for a double to get the seventh-inning rally underway. Frey and Ival Goodman walked and, with two out, Walters singled two runs home.

Stan Musial missed a shoestring catch and Mike McCormick's liner went for a triple in the eighth Mike trotted home on Bert Haas' fly

Bucks, Wolves Tied For First

CHICAGO —(AP)— Michigan and Ohio State have climbed into a tie for the Big Ten baseball leadership after winning doubleheaders in an eventful week-end highlighted by Chicago's first victory since 1940.

Wisconsin suffered its first defeat by splitting a two-game series with Iowa. The reaction knocked the Hawkeyes into third and the Badgers into fourth.

The Maroons' first taste of triumph after 25 consecutive setbacks came from Minnesota. The Gophers won on Friday, 16 to 0, but were humbled, 9 to 5, in Saturday's encounter.

* * *

Feature games this week are the Ohio State-Iowa and Michigan-Illinois encounters with the Big Ten pennant virtually hanging in the balance.

The Buckeyes blasted Illinois last week 2-1 and 8-5. Michigan triumphed 6-2 and 9-0 over Northwestern.

GERSONDE TAKES CLEVELAND TOURNEY

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Russell Gersonde of Wauwatosa, Wis., won the $1,500 top prize and a diamond-studded medal for his eight-game pin total of 1813 in the 28th annual Peterson bowling classic which closed early today at the Linsz alleys.

Gersonde is a member of the Pabst Blue Ribbon beer team of Milwaukee.

Tony Pompein of Lorain socked 1729 pins for tenth place and a slice of the prize money.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—Wide World—(John Heydler, ex-president of the National league who can tell you about baseball almost back to the beginning, comes up with this explanation of why modern clubs murder the pitchers with those big innings . . . It's because they swing any time they think they can hit the ball, even going for the 2-0 and 3-0 pitches . . . "In my day," he says, "we would have been benched for trying to hit after three balls had been called instead of waiting out a walk" . . . Story around town is that when and if Private Joe Louis fights Private Billy Conn next summer, the army emergency relief will get $100,000 off the top and then Louis and Mike Jacobs will contribute six per cent of their shares and Conn will kick in three per cent . . . It's Corporal Vic Ghezzi, now, and he'd better do all right when he defends his pro golf title unless he wants to return to the ranks

MARRIAGE OF CONVENIENCE

Story just trickled in about Fr. John Chisholm of Ft. Scott, Kans., visiting the Kentucky Derby . . . After a couple of races a fan who had imbibed a few too many of those one-buck mint juleps appeared with a girl companion . . . "Can you marry me right now?" he demanded . . Father Chisholm suggested that some later time would be more appropriate . . . "Maybe later I won't have the dough," the would-be bridegroom objected. "I just won all it takes, but I got to get married before the next race. Might lose it all back"

Reformatory Takes Opener

Reformatory defeated the Cleveland Pepsi-Colas in the opening game of their baseball season Saturday 6 to 1, winning the game with a two-run splurge in the first inning.

Slater, O. S. R. hurler, held the visitors to three hits, while Reformatory got only six off Antel.

J. Adams again led the Mansfeld Muzzle Loader Rifle club in its Saturday shoot with a mark of 44.3 per cent. and J. Baldinger was second with 33.2. Adams had 1 cup, 1 first, 2 seconds and 1 third in six matches

A. Wagner shot the best off-hand score with a string measure of 2.75 inches in three shots. B. Baker shot low string of 2.02 inches for three shots in the 50 yard rest event, and E. Light was second with 2.44.

Alsab Preps For Belmont

Preakness Winner Bids For Colt Title.

By JACK GUENTHER

NEW YORK — (UP) — The tune that led the turf's hit parade in 1941—"beat Alsab and you've beaten them all"—was tricked up with a few new lyrics today and tossed back into circulation while the railbirds were moving into Belmont park and the experts were crawling into the dog house.

* * *

For the $700 bargain colt who won $110,000 and the juvenile crown a year ago is back on the high road after being detoured for four months and once again the green light is hanging on the finish pole. Although he has won but a single race in nine starts this season, Alsab was firmly established today as the horse to whip for the three-year-old title.

That was because his one victory was scored Saturday in the classical Preakness stakes at Pimlico. This triumph, coupled with the second he ran a week ago in the Kentucky Derby, gave him a slight lead in the confused title race and he can all but wrap up the championship with another show of speed in the Belmont stake on June 6.

"On to the Belmont" was owner Al Sabath's happy greetings to friends after little 'Sab had boomed home to glory over the Pimlico course, whipping the nine best rivals who could be sent against him by a clear length and boosting his two-year earnings to $172,075 while picking up the impressively fat sum of $58,175 in the winner's purse.

And on to Belmont it will be. Alsab will run on May 23 in the Withers mile and then in the Belmont stake, the longest and the oldest of the big spring features. Unless Shut Out, who defeated him in the Derby, defeats him again, the little horse who was written off by the turf authorities as burned out will roll right on to his second straight crown.

Although he ran ninth for three-quarters of a mile, Alsab turned on his speed when it was needed in the stretch and carried his 126 pounds home in 1:57 flat — fastest time ever clocked in the Preakness and only a fifth of a second off the track record established by Pompoon and Seabiscuit while hauling less weight.

* * *

The hungry looking colt will face virtually the same rivals in the Belmont Stake. Shut Out, who never ran a lick in the Preakness after his surprising Derby score, and Devil Diver are eligible as are Requested and Sun Again, who dead-heated for second.

Terriers Win In Twelve Innings

ERIE, Pa.—(AP)—It took 12 innings to do it, but Canton squared its Mid-Atlantic league series with Erie.

The Tars came from behind in the ninth inning yesterday to knot the score 4-all, and it wasn't until three frames later that the Terriers, with the help of a double, a single, and an outfield fly, put across the clincher to win 5 to 4.

The game was played under protest after the fourth inning, when an argument arose over a ground rule and Kerby Farrell, Erie manager, was chased. He lodged the complaint.

Zanesville and Charleston split a doubleheader. The Ohioans took the first, 7 to 2, helped along by three unearned runs, while the Senators copped the nightcap by virtue of a three-run rally in the eighth.

* * *

The Dayton-Springfield game was postponed.

Games today: Canton at Erie, Dayton at Springfield and Zanesville at Charleston.

ABC TOURNAMENT ENDS WEDNESDAY

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The 42nd American Bowling Congress tournament closes Wednesday after a 71-day stand.

There have been few changes in leadership during the last two weeks of the tournament. There were no outstanding totals yesterday but John Wanda of Chicago had brilliant single game of 277.

Tribe Breaks Losing Streak

Score Five in Ninth to Tie, Win in Tenth.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—There was glee in the wigwam today over the rousing rally with which the Indians snapped their six-game losing streak, but the Tribe had lost Gene Desautels' services for six weeks.

The catcher's right leg was broken while the Indians were winning the nightcap of a double-header from the Tigers, 6 to 5, after bowing to Tommy Bridges' five-hit pitching in the opener, 5 to 1. Desautles and Shortstop Bill Hitchcock collided at the plate, and Cleveland immediately called back Jim Hegan from the Baltimore Orioles to help out their only other receiver, Otto Denning.

Hal White, rookie Detroit pitcher, was shutting out the Tribe, 5 to 0, and had allowed only three hits going into the ninth inning of the second contest, but the game soon blew up in his face.

After White walked Buster Mills and hit Manager Lou Boudreau, Jeff Heath sent a grounder to second baseman Jimmy Bloodworth, who threw wild to second, filling the sacks. Les Fleming drove in two runs with a single and Johnny Gorsica replaced White. Ken Keltner singled another run home, Ray Mack sacrificed and Otto Denning tapped to Gorsica and Fleming was trapped off third. Singles by Roy Weatherly and Oris Hockett brought the Tribe up even.

In the tenth Boudreau tripled, Gorsica walked Heath and Fleming, and then Keltner's drive to the wall in deep left center ended the ball game.

Jim Bagby started the game, but Tom Ferrick took over in the ninth and Joe Heving, who hurled in the tenth, got credit for the win.

In the first game, Al Smith, Harry Eisenstat, Heving, and Al Milnar all had a try at the Tigers, and among them allowed only six hits,

Principals Take Step for Control of All Activities

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—H. R. Townsend, state scholastic athletic commissioner, is about to have a flock of new chores loaded upon his broad shoulders, under a plan proposed by the Ohio High School Principals association.

* * *

The principals, the final voting authority in all state-wide matters pertaining to the high schools, desire to erase the word "athletic" from the State High School Athletic association, and then place all inter-school activities under the new association's jurisdiction.

At present state and district, and in some cases county, competitions are held in band, orchestra, dramatics and debating — under the auspices of organizations not directly affiliated with the school system.

"A committee selected by the principals will meet soon with the state athletic board," Townsend said, "to discuss the possibilty of placing all school competitions under the association It's possible the new setup will be placed in effect for the 1942-43 school year."

The State Athletic association is now operating on a budget of approximately $15,000 per year, but Townsend said between $30,000 and $35,000 would be necessary to finance the new plan annually.

The athletic group's revenue is derived almost wholly from the county, district and state basketball tournaments, plus fees collected from game officials.

The schools themselves paid annual dues of $3 for several years, but that practice was discontinued about 10 years ago when the cage tourneys hit the "big business" bracket.

Townsend said the Illinois high school association had jurisdiction over all school competitions, and that the plan was "working well" in that state. However, he said the Illinois office was manned by eight or 10 employes, while Townsend has only a secretary and stenographer as assistants.

* * *

Should the new setup be placed in effect, Townsend said rigid eligibility rules would be devised, such as those now governing athletes, with which all entrants in the band, orchestra, dramatics, debating or other competitions would be forced to comply.

Providents Stage Rally

Come From Behind to Defeat Columbus Team.

Provident Loan girls came from behind to pull a 5-4 victory out of the fire in their softball game with the Columbus Wilks Meats at North Lake park yesterday afternoon.

Trailing 2-4 in the sixth, they felt a rally coming on as Schaeffer led off with a single and Herrick walked. Both advanced on Holda's out, Schuster was safe on an error and Jocha and Tipul singled to bring in three runs and sew up the ball game.

They got their first two runs in the second on walks to Tipul and Bessemer and a long single to right by Whiteman.

The state champs got only five hits off the fast but wild G. Feyl, but bunched them with walks. Meanwhile the Columbus girls were hitting Fran Knapp rather freely, getting eight singles, but they were held in check after the second inning.

Best play of the game came in the sixth when Catcher Mary Bessemer backed up a low throw at first and caught the runner trying to advance to second on the error.

The Providents meet the Wilks Meats again next Saturday night at Delaware.

THEATERS

Nautical Musical.

William Holden swaps an aviation uniform for a sailor's garb in his second role as one of Uncle Sam's men in the Ohio attraction, "The Fleet's In." Holden was the flyer who burned up the skies recently in "I Wanted Wings." In the current picture wth Dorothy Lamour he plays a girl-shy sailor who meets up with a beauteous singer while on shore leave in San Francisco. Miss Lamour plays the singer and the cast includes Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra. A special March of Time subject, "When An Air Raid Strikes," supplements the bill.

Double Thriller.

Lon Chaney, jr., provides the central horror figure in "The Ghost of Frankenstein," which tops the double thriller at the Madison. Chaney plays the monster, a six-foot nine-inch creature, that terrifies the countryside and defies destruction. Lionel Atwill, Bela Lugosi and Sir Cedric Hardwicke are other players in this shocker. "The Strange Case of Dr. Rx," with Atwill, Anne Gwynne and Mona Barrie is the co-feature.

Swashbuckler.

The swashbuckling tale of a man who battles the world for his birthright is told in "Son of Fury," the Tyrone Power-Gene Tierney picture at the Ritz. Beginning n Bristol, England, the story travels the seven seas as Power as a soldier of fortune seeks a niche in the world. Gene Tierney appears opposite the star as a South Sea island native and the cast includes Elsa Lanchester, Frances Farmer and Roddy McDowall. "Youth America," with Jane Withers is the second feature.

Gay Comedy.

The rollicking story of how two celebrites cross up each other in an effort to attain greater publicity is set forth in "Playmates," the John Barrymore-Kay Kyser picture at the Park. Both stars do a "natural" in the picture, Barrymore portraying a great actor, and Kyser a popular band leader. Lupe Velez, Patsy Kelly and Ginny Simms are in the cast. The Bumsteads do a turn in college in the second picture, "Blondie Goes To College," with Arthur Lake and Penny Singleton.

Thieves Choose Wrong Victim— With Sad Results

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(INS)—Expressionism and freedom from photographic reproduction may have the preponderant number of supporters in the art world but there is a San Antonio artist who knows the value of exactitude, literally, in painting.

She is Mrs. R. B. Steuerwald and—while painting in the park one day—chose three youths as subject material.

Becoming engrossed in her work, with true artistic absorption, she neglected to keep close watch over her purse lying nearby. While she was putting the finishing touches to her painting, the three models disappeared, and with them her purse.

She appealed to park policemen for aid. One of them as a last resort, suggested that they look at the painting to see if a clue to the identity of the culprits might be obtained. Surprisingly enough, the likeness was so good that the three boys were picked up in another section of the park a few minutes later, full of three dollars worth of hot dogs and pop but with five of the original eight dollars which the purse had contained.

So, Mrs. Steuerwald has five bucks which says facsimile painting in more profitable than expressionism.

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

CONCERN FELT OVER WINTER STEEL SUPPLY

Magazine Reports No Hope of Building Reserve of Scrap Metal.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks continued to acquire fractional advances in today's market.

Forward tendencies were displayed by U S Rubber, Bethlehem, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison and General Electric.

Trend analysts noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, while improvement in the scrap supply was being maintained, "reserves cannot be built for next winter and concern is felt over prospects for that period."

The review commented on the move toward heavier products such as plates, bars and shapes and added that demand in these lines was being intensified by recent allocations of considerable tonnage of steel rails for export under lend-lease

Holders of merchandising issues scanned forecasts that, with the ceiling rule for manufacturers and wholesalers now in effect, retail stores could be expected to increase purchases in order to average costs of goods bought at higher levels

BOMB SALUTE!

Malta's New Govefnor Sworn in During Air Raid.

VALLETTA Malta—(AP)—Amid the thunder of bursting bombs and the chatter of machine guns, Lord Gort was sworn in as governor and commander-in-chief of Malta yesterday while RAF fighters battled Axis air raiders over this battered island stronghold

The former chief of the imperial general staff took the oath of office in a bomb-scarred building before a chief justice whose hand was bleeding from cuts suffered as the result of a bomb blast only a few minutes before.

Once during the ceremony the high officials present flattened themselves on the floor as a bomb whistled down and exploded with a deafening roar nearby

Shortage of Ohio Farm Youths Creates Harvest Problem

COLUMBUS—(AP)—There likely will be enough boys around this summer to help farmers harvest their wheat crop Agriculture Director John T Brown said today.

He admitted that youths generally prefered shouldering a gun to farm labor but in spite of this reports of a campaign to "recruit" young labor from high schools and colleges indicated sufficient boys would be available

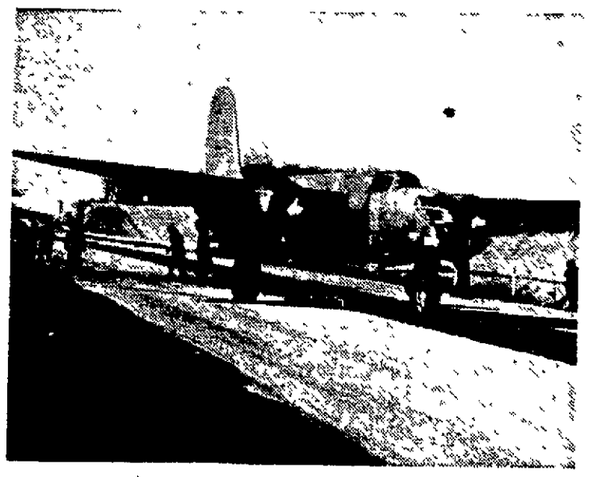
Look Out Below!



Motorists will have to keep their eyes on the sky as well as the road these days. The war department has started on construction of flight strips which will be used as auxiliary landing fields In the photo above an army plane straddles the dual Pennsylvania Turnpike after a forced landing. The flight strips would serve in such emergencies.

SEEKS PROBE

Ashland AAA Chairman Calls For Wheat Fraud Inquiry.

A request from Jake W Staman, Ashland county AAA chairman, for a federal investigation of the May 2 wheat quota referendum in his county brought quick response today from Russell T Kiko head of the Ohio Marketing Protest association, who said "every farmer in America" would welcome the investigation

The Ashland county chairman called for a probe after the official tally of ballots cast in the referendum showed that there were five more votes than eligible voters in one precinct.

"We will demand that the investigation cover all phases of the election which was a farce, a joke and a fraud," Kiko said "We doubt that the AAA will go through with it but if they do, let them investigate every state where the voting took place."

Britain's 'Black Market' Rings Adopt New Trick

LONDON—(INS)—Latest "Black Market" trick in Britain is to employ "whisperers" who start scaremonger campaigns designated to stampede housewives into a buying spree and cause shortages of non-controlled products

Then "Black Market" rings step into the picture with large stocks of previously collected products which are offered to the public at exorbitant prices.

A recent example was that of a buying rush of flour in at least seven large centers in England. As long as the shortage lasted racketeers were selling flour at more than twice the usual price.

While issuing warning to the public not to heed such "whispeier campaigns" Britain's Ministry of Food is beginning a widespread campaign to bring to an end once and for all the crimes of the "black market."

British Soldier Proposes to His Fiancee By Radio

LONDON—(INS)—Speaking of novel proposals—a British soldier interned in Italy seems to have set a new record.

In a radio message broadcast over the Vatican wave-length to his girl at home in England, Sergeant Kenneth Maunders, 21, said. "Everything is OK. Don't worry about me Consider us engaged Tell Mother not to worry. Lots of love, Ken"

The girl, twenty-year-old Pat Foster did not hear the broadcast herself, but the next day received scores of congratulatory telegrams from people all over the country who had listened in.

"Last Saturday Kenneth gave me an engagement ring by proxy," she explained, "he asked his father in a letter to buy me a ring and propose for him. This radio broadcast must have been him confirming the proposal. Of course I accept" including a large amount of gold stored in Martinique, will be held for the ultimate use of the French people.

Dismantling of the French warships and the planes, however, is considered essential in the view of Pierre Laval's return to power as head of the Vichy government.

Declines Comment On Martinique Talks

SAN JUAN, P. R. — (INS) — Rear Admiral John H. Hoover, commander of the U S Caribbean fleet, declined comment today on the results of his negotiations in Martinique with Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner, on an American proposal to safeguard Martinique from Axis threats.

But it was learned on reliable authority that the discussions were "most favorable" and that Admiral Hoover probably would return to Martinique soon to continue the discussions

Laval Opposes Independent Action

VICHY, France—(U.P.)—Chief of government Pierre Laval will not recognize any "independent" agreement negotiated between the United States and Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner for the French Antilles, affecting Martinique and other French possessions in the Caribbean, informed quarters reported today

Laval will insist, they said, that any such agreement be approved fully by the Vichy government.

In conferences last night with S Pinckney Tuck American charge d'affaires at Vichy, Laval was said to have maintained that any negotiations regarding the French Antilles should be negotiated through the Washington and Vichy embassies.

TWO KILLED

Auto Racers Die When Cars Collide On Greenville Sporting Oval.

GREENVILLE — (U P) — Two automobile racers Eugene C Woodford, 37, Dayton and Earl Scott Harton jr 28 Lansing Mich. were killed yesterday in the first of two special races which opened the middle western racing season.

Rain early in the day had cut the field to seven drivers and the spectators were willing to take rain checks But the track was dry and the drivers asked for two special 10-lap events Woodford led into the third lap when his car skidded. Harton, close behind crashed into Woodford's car. Harton's car went over a bank and caught fire.

GOT YOUR COAL BIN FILLED UP?

Better Start Now, Nelson Says, Rationing May Start Next Fall.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — American consumers today faced an ultimatum from War Production Board Chief Donald M. Nelson to stockpile coal "at once to the limit of storage capacity" or face the possibility of rationing of the fuel because of transportation difficulties.

In an open letter to consumers, Nelson said coal dealers needing financial aid may obtain it from the Reconstruction Finance corporation or through local banks if they purchase coal for shipment from the mines before August 1, 1942.

"Complete co-operation with this program will help the nation avert serious problems," Nelson said. "We must stockpile to the limit. I know I can depend on your help."

He said transportation problems will increase in coming months, but railroads and other transportation facilities still have some surplus carrying capacity which should be utilized now to avoid serious transportation dislocations next fall and winter.

"The fuel oil situation on the east coast and winter weather transportation problems makes stockpiling operations now of great importance to all consumers who are now dependent or may later become dependent on coal for heating their homes, or running their plants and factories," he said.
